Proof, Says New York Girl Attorney

MISS ELIZABETH BLUME, NEW YORK ATTORNEY, AND (INSET) HARRY PAYER, ATTORNEY OF CLEVELAND

What are the chances for a fair and impartial trial when the jury is more than half women and the opposing attorneys are of opposite sexes and good looking?

"No chance," says Miss Elizabeth Blume, who has an established reputation as an attorney in New York.

"Young women are too easily swayed by the smiles and compliments of a handsome man. There is danger, too, that if the majority of the panel are men, a woman may be too timid to fearlessly express her opinion."

"I never want a mixed jury if I can help it. I prefer either 12 men or 12 women who would meet the requirements of the men."

"Every chance," says Harry Payer of Cleveland, one of the best jury lawyers in the country.

"I have so much respect for the opinion of women jurors that I do not believe they can be influenced by any externalities."

"Women have a very keen sense of justice and I should be quite as willing to have my cases go to a jury of women or partially of women as to one of men. And I am positive the sex or appearance of the attorney or client would make no difference with the result."

CO-OPERATIVE BANK
IN ITS NEW HOME

The Middlesex Co-operative bank welcomed its friends today to its new home in the Central block, 35 Central street. It is a new home in all its outward appearance; new decorations, new furniture and newness everywhere although it is in the building from which the bank was driven by fire some time ago.

There is an air of "homeliness" about the new quarters combined with an atmosphere of up-to-the-minute business. A feature of the building room is a large fireplace built of art brick. The banking furniture is of steel and mahogany with desks of mahogany. The prevailing color scheme is restful, buff and gray.

The directors' room presents a picture of substantial comfort. In the center of the room is a long mahogany table and around the walls are capacious and inviting chairs.

An unusually complete installation of indirect lighting fixtures provides facilities for flooding the rooms with artificial light.

TUFTS BROKE DOWN ON Quarter Century Ago
WITNESS STAND

BOSTON, July 30.—Dist. Atty. Nathan A. Tufts went over the memory of his father in the midst of a pitiless examination before the supreme court yesterday, when he was called upon to account for the $25,000 bank deposits made by him near the time of the Massachusetts settlement in 1917.

He had been asked by Atty. Gen. J. Weston Allen to state the circumstances under which his father had given him three cash presents.

"Almost the last words my father said to me," he commenced; but paused, laboring with emotion. He struggled to regain mastery over himself, murmuring half coherently the dying injunction of his parent:

"My boy, this is the last I have. Look out for your mother."

With another agitated gasp the witness concluded huskily.

Weakness Only Momentary

His weakness was only momentary, for when Mr. Allen considerably asked if he would like to suspend, Mr. Tufts replied firmly, "No, sir."

Whereupon the attorney general probed again into the witness' intimate recollections.

The gift from the elder Tufts, the district attorney explained, came in installments of $5000, $1000 and $6000, which the parent produced in bills from a bureau drawer.

"This second gift—was that from the same bureau drawer?" drawled Allen.

"I think so. He may have taken it from under his pillow. But I think it was from the same bureau drawer."

Sold House for $20,000

"Did you know how long he had had that money?"

"In 1852, when I was a lad of 13 or 14, he received some $20,000 from the city of Fitchburg for the sale of our house and rather large lot of land to be used for the erection of a school-house."

The money was reinvested in securities, Mr. Tufts said, and the father, when he gave him the sum, told him he was turning what he had into cash.

"Did your father live on a pension his last eight years of life?"

"Yes, sir," said a month."

"Do you know how much personal property he paid taxes on in Fitchburg?"

"I do not."

"Did you know, as a matter of fact, that your father paid only a poll tax, $2 a year, in Fitchburg?" came the next incisive question.

"I did not. I had no information about that."

Lowell Lawyer Testifies

Three superior court judges contributed to the building of the Tufts defense with testimony which gave the official observation was concerned.

The first, Chief Justice Allen, told of Tufts' correspondence with him seeking to relieve the crowded condition of the Middlesex county dockets. He and the other two, ex-Judge William B. Stevens and Judge Louis S. Cox, brother of the governor, testified that they have observed no incidents of nonfeasance or malfeasance on Mr. Tufts' part.

Through the testimony of another lawyer, Edward J. Tierney of Lowell, the defense asked the Allen charge in the Lavigne apportionment case that Mr. Tufts failed to bring to the attention of the court the legal penalties for the offense. Mr. Tierney declared that Tufts declined to assume the responsibility of giving the Lavigne special consideration of the doctor's great age and feeble condition. He stated that Judge Bell, before whom the case was tried, took cognizance of these things and suggested to Mr. Tufts the not pressing of that part of the complaint which alleged that the surgical operation had incited the death of the victim.

"Was there any suggestion that this was a case for executive clemency afterward, rather than a not pro?" Mr. Allen asked.

"I didn't discuss executive clemency with anybody," said Tierney.

CONVICT KILLED
IN PRISON RIOT

McALESTER, Okla., July 30.—One convict was killed, a building wrecked and several guards were slightly injured in a riot which broke out in the state penitentiary yesterday afternoon.

Jack Whitehead, life term, was killed when he attempted to rush guards.

Armed guards leveled rifles on the rioters and ordered them to stop. Whitehead, instead of complying, drew a knife and made a rush. One shot was fired, dropping him. Order was restored in 20 minutes.

A. R. Garrett, deputy warden, declared the convicts made no attempt to escape and seemed bent only on destroying the shirt plant which recently was installed.

WILL PREACH AT ALL SOULS CHURCH

The Rev. Doremus Scudder of Boston, who is to preach at the last of the special summer services at All Souls church tomorrow morning, is one of the best known men of his Congregational ministry and has had an unusually varied experience, part of it as missionary, and again as pastor in Japan and later as a Red Cross official in Siberia. For a decade he was with the Central Union church in Honolulu. Dr. Scudder is the author of several books. His present work is that of executive secretary of the Greater Boston Federation of churches.

HIGHER AND HIGHER
Go Street Department Expenses and Higher and Higher Goes the Tax Rate WHO PAYS?

Says the old Sun:
Among the officers elected at the afternoon session of the I.O.O.F., Mr. U. at Brockton yesterday were the following: J. J. Gregg was elected secretary, John O'Reilly, John Emsley, Peter Cadogan, all of Lowell, were elected auditors. A handsome jewel of the order was presented to P. P. G. H. George Emsley of Lowell.

Torchlight Parade

In the presidential campaign of 1896, the republicans organized campaign companies of a semi-military character in every city and they all joined in public parades in the various cities represented in the organization. Lowell had an organization entitled the Boys in Blue and when a great parade was announced here, companies attended from Lawrence, Haverhill, Nashua and Manchester. Every company member carried a flaming torch and the parades were therefore the most spectacular imaginable. Red fire and plenty of music added to the appeal of the show. From the old Sun the following is taken relative to one of the "Boys in Blue" companies:

The Boys in Blue met again last evening and organized another company with these officers:

"Capt. J. C. Crouly, 1st Lieut. J. R. Fulton, 2d Lieut. George B. Clogston. The uniform adopted was a blue cape overcoat, a cap, white belt and tan leggings. Every man will carry a gun torch."

The staff officers elected were as follows: Surgeon, John W. Cotter; chaplain, W. A. Arnold; sergeant, major A. I. Gilman; quartermaster sergeant, J. B. S. Baldwin; commissary sergeant, N. Peabody; paymaster, Sam Chapin; color bearer, William T. Hall; messengers, Joseph Corliss and Joseph Richardson.

After the parade the marching companies were provided with an abundant supply of refreshments. There probably never was a campaign in which money was used more lavishly than in support of McKinley and Hobart.

Names on Bridge Tablet

Here are names of city officials engraved in an iron shield and attached to the framework of the Moody street bridge. The venture to say that it would be rather difficult to find that shield at the present time and it found it would hardly be legible:

Says the Sun:
"A shield containing the following inscription has been placed in the new Moody street bridge:
"City of Lowell, Mass. Mayor William F. Courtney; city engineer, George Bowers; superintendent of streets, Robert A. Crowley; bridge committee, Daniel Varnum, Joseph F. Gurney, Charles Riley, Hugh McGuire, Jr., Geo. W. Hartwell, John E. Sullivan, Frederick J. Flemings, Bulfinch A. D. 1856 by the Groton Bridge and Mfg. Co., Groton, N. Y."

The Bryan Campaign in Lowell

The following from the old Sun is a reminder of the campaign for Bryan and Sewall in 1896:

The democratic campaign in this city opened auspiciously last evening despite the rain with a magnificent rally on the streets of the city. The hall was crowded and so remained until the speaking closed at 10 o'clock.

Hon. George Fred Williams was escorted from the American House at 7.45 by Mirault's band, which played rousing airs en route to the hall and after its arrival there. While the carriages bearing the speakers moved along the streets red fire was profusely burned and a multitude followed to the hall. Frank J. Simonds presided and the only other speaker besides Mr. Williams was John H. Harrington, publisher of the Sun.

Great Athletic Meet

The following from the Sun will interest those who follow sports and particularly those who are interested in the clunder track events:

"Had the big rainstorm which flooded the city Friday night ceased at about 4 or 5 o'clock Saturday morning the newly organized Burkes Amateur Athletic club would have had 6000 people at its first outdoor meet on the Fair grounds but the attendance did not exceed 4000."

Peters, Burke, Kilpatrick, Murphy, the trainer, and all the principal stars in the amateur athletic firmament were present, and it was a great event from every standpoint except financially.

"The fun started at 3 p. m. with the 100 yards novice. Many of the local cranks were expecting Denny Murphy of the Emerald baseball team in this race, but he failed to show up. The novice 100 yards dash was won by J. Gagne of Franklin Falls, N. H., who won the first trial heat in 11 seconds, and the final from H. S. Whitney of Manchester, N. H., in 11.5 seconds. Then came the 100 handicap in which every one was interested because Bonnie Wefer started in it. Wefer ran the first trial in 10 seconds with Phil Stringle a close second. In the final he met a corker in young H. C. Kennington of the Dedham high school who with a nine yard handicap beat the champion by about a yard in 9.32. Had Wefer's time been taken it would have been wonderful on that track."

The high jump was a very pleasing event for in it a Lowell man, Frank Looney, with a six-inch handicap, got second prize. W. B. Boyce of the Newton high school and a strapping young fellow surprised everyone. He had five inches on the scratch man, Phil Stringle, and got first prize at five feet, seven inches, Stringle falling to six feet. A funny feature of this event was the appearance of Chapeaux, of this city, a young man of athletic tendencies, who said he could make them

Flakerty Was Ill

From the Sun:
"The local sports who remained out until early morning for returns from the Flakerty-Gans fight were much disappointed to hear the news that owing to illness Martin was unable to go in, giving Gans the $200 forfeit."

Paul Butler Was

Says the old Sun:
"UTICA, N. Y., July 23.—The first of the international half-rater races on the St. Lawrence river under the auspices of the Ogdensburg Yacht club was held today. At the start the river was like a sheet of glass but the breeze freshened up. The course was four times around a triangle with one-mile legs. The yachts finished in this order: Sothus, Vesper, Mischief, Peggy, Anita, Missie. The Gold Bug was distanced. The Sothuses fouled its buoy, was disqualified and the race was given to Paul Butler's Vesper."

Thomas F. Hoban

In the old Sun I find a base ball item telling of victories won by the "Hoban Pets." The victories of the amateur ball team were of little importance, but at this time the item recalls the into Thomas F. Hoban for whom the team was named. Tom was the soul of gentility and good nature. He equipped the "Hoban Pets" and took a deep interest in their playing. I doubt whether there was a single man or woman in Lowell who was personally acquainted with Mr. Hoban who did not sincerely grieve on hearing of his death. He had been ill for a considerable time and from a disease that kept cropping on him until as might be said, it killed him by inches. But Mr. Hoban in all his sufferings, even after he had lost both limbs, was light hearted and devoted to his friends. It seemed as if his heart was filled with kindness and never knew the searing emotion of hatred. When in 1892 and 93, he served in the common council, he made life-long friends without, however, making a single enemy, because he always took the honorable course and there, as in the legislature some years later, no man was ever heard to utter a word of reproach against Tom Hoban. He helped many a friend who had no claim on his generosity and he helped many a worthy charity and if I mistake not, he gave proof of this same spirit in his last will and testament.

WILL SEIZE LAND FOR PLAYGROUNDS

The park department voted at a special meeting last evening to give notice to owners of a tract of land in the Highlands, bounded by B. Parker and Stevens street, that the land is to be seized by the city for playground purposes. The commission instructed Supt. John V. Kernan to serve the notice and to give the owners of the land a public hearing on Aug. 24, if they wished it.

The land involved contains about five acres and the cost of taking it over is estimated at $5000. It is pro-

*—Tax Rate as estimated for 1921.
||—Street Appropriations and Loans made for first six months.

Mr. Property Owner, Mr. Home Owner, Mr. Rent Payer—
Do you wonder your yearly expenses mount higher and higher? Look over the above tables. Read how the Street Department Expenses have helped to increase the Tax Rate for the past nine years.

If your home had a valuation of $4000 in 1913 you paid a tax of $77.60; in 1921 you will have to pay a tax of probably $150.00, for the tax rate has been increased $10.50 per thousand and your valuation has been raised approximately 25 per cent.

If you are a RENT PAYER keep in mind that your landlord has increased your rent, in order that he, in turn, can pay the City the increased taxes on his property.

One reason for your increased taxes and rents is that IN 1920 PERMANENT PAVING LAID BY THE STREET DEPARTMENT COST $13.34 SQ. YD. compared with 1921 PERMANENT PAVING LAID BY CONTRACT IN BOSTON AT COST OF $3.06 SQ. YD.

Stampeders Rush To New Oil Fields

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, July 30.—Reported discovery of what is said to be a high grade of seepage oil near Anchorage, with the indication that the field extends for 50 miles north along the government railroad has sent a crowd of stampeders into the district to stake claims. According to an apparently authentic report here, an 80 foot quartz vein assaying in the neighborhood of $500 to the ton, has been uncovered in the northern part of the California Creek district, north of Anchorage.

Missing Girl In Muzzle Of Gun

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., July 30.—Louise O'Brien, aged 14, missing from her home all night was found at daybreak, asleep inside the muzzle of a 14-inch gun of the shore batteries at Port Worden. Other guns at the fort had been fired just before the girl was discovered. According to military authorities, she had gone for a horseback ride the previous afternoon. Far from home, while she was dismounted, the horse ran away and she, losing her way and weary of wandering in the darkness, took refuge in the long black object that suddenly loomed in her path. Officers at the fort said it was only by chance that this gun was not fired.

Boston Fishing Schooner Sunk

SHELBORNE, N. S., July 30.—The Boston schooner Genesta was sunk yesterday while fishing on Brown bank, 70 miles from this port, by the three masted Lunenburg schooner Mary G. Duff. The Genesta's crew of 20 arrived here on the Mary G. Duff today. Captain Dobson of the Genesta said that the collision occurred in thick weather. The schooner had 5000 pounds of fish on board when she foundered.

Orders Release of Irish Prisoners

DUBLIN, July 30.—The crown attorney announced today that the government had decided to release John J. Egan and Patrick Higgins pending a hearing on appeal against the habeas corpus and contempt of court orders issued in connection with their cases. This overruling by the government of the military, in the decision to release Egan and Higgins, is considered here as an indication of a fixed intention on the government's part to encourage the spread of the peace atmosphere. Higgins was under sentence of death and Egan was accused of having taken part in an ambush.

Stabs Wife, Shoots Her Mother and Self

NEW BEDFORD, July 30.—Jacinto Coriera, aged 46, living at 367 Shaw street, at 5.30 this morning terminated a family quarrel over division of money received in a property sale by shooting his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Vierra, twice, once in the neck and once in the side, slashing his wife, Mrs. Maria Coriera, aged 23 on the arms and then shot himself in the breast. The two women will recover, but Coriera is dying. All three are at St. Luke's hospital. Coriera is the father of eight children, seven by a former wife, and one by his present spouse.

posed to do only enough work on the tract after it is seized to allow boys to play ball there and to use it for general playstead purposes.

The commission authorized Supt. Kernan to attend the annual convention of park department superintendents to be held in Detroit in August.

QUITS COMMISSION TO PRACTICE LAW

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Edgar B. Clark, chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission, who recently submitted his resignation to President Harding, will enter a partnership for the practice in Washington of commercial law, according to an announcement today.

Mr. Clark, who has been a member of the commission since 1906, and chairman for the last three years, resigned, it was stated today, in order to relieve himself of the strain connected with his office and also to make more substantial provision for his family. It was emphasized today at the commission offices that there had been no disagreement between the chairman and the administration.

President Harding has appointed Frederick L. Cox, of East Orange, N. J., with business interests in New York, to succeed to Mr. Clark's place on the commission.

INSTITUTE OF POLITICS
BEGINS REAL WORK

WILLIAMSTOWN, July 30.—The Institute of Politics, which was opened at Williams college for a four weeks' session yesterday with Chief Justice William Howard Taft as its chairman, settled down to real work today. The members interested in the historical and geographical changes caused by the world war met for their round table conference under the leadership of Charles W. Haskins, dean of the graduate school at Harvard, and Colonel Lawrence Martin of Washington. The conference will meet regularly during the session of the institute and will hear a discussion by qualified experts of "The new frontiers in western Europe and the Near East." Its members include many college professors several well-known publicists. Meanwhile organization of the seven other round tables, which will hold their first sessions next week was advanced. The first of the series of public lectures which will be one of the features of the Institute's work, will be given this evening by Viscount James Bryce, former British ambassador to the United States, who will speak on "International Relations of the old world states, including a discussion of the causes of wars and the means of averting them."

HAIRDRESSING PARLORS

Miss Florence Whelan, whose advertisement appears on another page, has one of the most attractive hairdressing parlors in the city, equipped with the latest appliances to give proper treatment and care to the hair. She is conveniently located in the square over Green's drug store and has her shop open from 9 in the morning until 5 at night so as to enable her clients to have appointments at their own convenience.

Finds Graves of Comrades

of soldiers' graves is now filled by Frank B. Flanders of 28 Leverett street. Mr. Flanders has the expenditure of $350, appropriated by the city this year for carrying on his work of searching out soldiers' graves and taking steps for having them properly marked with headstones and Grand Army markers set in cement bases. It is understood that he would be a candidate for appointment if the request contained in the petitions now in circulation were granted. It is understood that Mr. Flanders would be content with a nominal salary of $1000 a year and a small allowance for carrying on the work of the office.

Member of Grand Army

Mr. Flanders is a member of Post 120 of the Grand Army. He served two years and nine months in the army during the Civil war. He was wounded in the fighting at Fredericksburg and, after recovering from the effects of his disability, went back into the fighting forces again and was seriously wounded in front of Petersburg. He was discharged from service on account of his injury and has been partially lame ever since. Mr. Flanders is 57 years old, and his friends say that in a few years, if he were made a regular employee of the city and devoted all of his time to the work, he would be able to locate all the unknown graves of soldiers, have them suitably marked, and put a complete record of the last resting places in shape for preservation. It is pointed out that the total expense to the city for the performance of the work would be small, and that the offices could be allowed to lapse with the completion of the work.

The First Movement

The first movement toward having the graves of soldiers marked and their location made a matter of permanent record was started by the Grand Army shortly after the close of the war. In 1912, 1913 and 1914 interest in the matter was again revived as the national commander of the Grand Army in annual messages called attention to the importance of the subject. Last spring the American Legion gave renewed impetus to the movement by giving approval to the project to have suitable provision made for carrying out the wishes of the old soldiers.

Appointed by O'Donnell

Mr. Flanders was appointed as agent for the care of soldiers' graves by Mayor O'Donnell in 1916. Since that time he has spent a considerable portion of his time in ferreting out the location of unknown graves. To a friend Mrs. Flanders recently said that when her husband succeeded in locating the unknown grave of a comrade he appeared to be as happy as though he had found a gold mine. In the Edison cemetery alone Mr. Flanders has found and had suitably marked 25 unknown graves. He believes there may be other unmarked graves in this cemetery and also a considerable number in St. Patrick's cemetery.

One of the graves recently discovered by Mr. Flanders is that of a Low-land discovered by Mr. Flanders. This year Mr. Flanders has also located in the Potter's field in the same cemetery three unmarked graves of soldiers who died in camp in this city. One of the soldiers was from Maine and the other two from New Hampshire. Mr. Flanders says that he hopes he will find the unmarked grave of a comrade named McCarthy, who served in his own regiment and whom he knew well, when he has an opportunity to search in St. Patrick's cemetery.

Grand Army Markers

In addition to locating unknown graves of soldiers and securing government headstones for them and having them placed, Mr. Flanders has had a large number of the Grand Army markers on graves painted and set in cement bases to insure their perpetuation. He has also succeeded in having some of the soldiers' graves in the 24-1843. The body was brought to this city for burial in the Edison cemetery, care. For some of the work he has done Mr. Flanders has paid out of

Youthful President of the Ford Company Tells Sun His Plans

Will Not Be Satisfied Until the Ford Plant is Self-Sufficient

BY EDWARD THIERRY

DETROIT, Mich., July 30.—"Do it yourself—don't depend on others."

That is the business creed of Edsel Ford, son of Henry Ford, and the world's youngest man-with-the-biggest job.

This is the first intimate interview Edsel Ford ever has given. Edsel, not Henry, is president of the Ford

EDSEL FORD, WHO HAS JUST GIVEN THE FIRST INTIMATE INTERVIEW ON HIS JOB TO THE SUN.

Motor company. You have read much about Henry, the builder, but little about Edsel—the man at the wheel.

"Edsel is the boss," Henry Ford had told me when he was camping with President Harding, Thomas Edison and H. S. Firestone. "No, I'm not even chairman of the company, I haven't got a job at all."

Resembles Father

Edsel is a quiet, serious-faced, serious-voiced young man. He is only 23. He looks like his father, with the same sharply chiseled face, quite thin, with dark complexion, smooth face, brown eyes and hair brushed straight back. He walks with a slight stoop and long strides like his father.

"Father put me through the mill," Edsel told me. "Now I'm at the wheel. I have been president two and a half years. It isn't an easy job."

"I realize my responsibilities—now, and in the future. The hardest part is finished. It is easier to run something that has been cranked and started and is running in high gear."

The Ford interests have always been a one-man proposition. And always will be.

That's why father stepped out and let me steer. I'm playing his game—doing things myself when I want them done right.

Complete Industry

"I will not be satisfied until our plant is self-sufficient. We make nearly everything that goes into our cars and trucks. We will produce everything ourselves—except tires. We have good friends who make tires."

"Buying the Detroit, Toledo & Iron-ore railroad was a step in that direction. The railroad was an adventure—and it's beginning to be a profitable adventure."

"To get maximum efficiency we will make our own steel. We have our ore mines and blast furnaces and coal mines. And we are going into cotton."

To Cut Car Prices

Edsel goes an even lower priced car in the future. He asked him when reductions might come. He said: "Not now." He said: "But just wait a few years. We haven't got automobile-building down to the science we hope to have it. The bottom has not been hit yet."

Economy in production is the big thing. That means do everything yourself. That's what we're doing. "So far we have made 5,200,000 cars. And right now production is ahead of all records. I'm proud of that—as president of the company."

"This month we are making 4350 cars a day. And we are doing it with 15,000 fewer men than it required to turn out 3500 cars a day last year. Then we had 55,000 men."

"When we made out our schedule of what we wanted to produce we had that many men to draw on. And we found—by close application of economy and system that we could do the work with 40,000 men."

"No, we are not speeding up the men. I think the secret is that every-

AUTO INSURANCE RATES

Automobile Makers Want Reduction—Moral Hazard Should be Recognized

NEW YORK, July 30.—Lower insurance rates on a better basis are sought by the national automobile chamber of commerce in severing relations with the underwriters laboratories which would group cars according to mechanical construction.

Over-valuation and ignoring the character of the policy holder are the two weakest points in the insurance methods today, in the opinion of the automobile makers.

Most of the new cars carrying insurance are valued at more than their market price if the owner had to sell them. Consequently the temptation to destroy the car is strong for the owner.

Through faced with this situation, no recognition is made of the moral hazard. No inquiry is made concerning a man's character before writing his policy, so that the danger of valuation are not stopped at this point.

More important than the crime element is the carelessness which over-valuation encourages in the average motorist. If his automobile is over-valued theft or accident may prove a blessing.

The activities of the underwriters laboratories are regarded as too detailed. The inspections result in classifications which are illogical. Parts makers which do not submit to the underwriters laboratories tests do not get rated, and a car may accordingly be unfairly listed because not all of its parts are supervised.

Few of the accidents today are due to faulty construction. The automobile makers feel that little is gained by the underwriters laboratories tests as the cause of the high rates lies in factors not related to mechanical production.

Insurance companies are working on these suggestions and a readjustment in policies and rates is hoped for in the near future.

body is over the hysteria of abnormal prosperity. We all have our hearts in our work.

"We are on a sounder basis now. Everybody is that's why we weathered what many people thought was a storm. We got along without Wall Street's money—and if Wall Street thinks we put one over on them I'm glad of it."

Building Speed Boat

"The motor car isn't the only thing that keeps me busy. They're the tractor. And the gasoline trolley."

"And a new speed boat. We are building. We are using duraluminum, the German metal, in the speed boat, which will have 1000 horsepower. It will be 32 feet long and go 60 miles an hour."

"We are experimenting a lot with duraluminum now that we can make it in this country under an arrangement with the alien-property custodian. It is lighter, and it has the good qualities of steel and iron, though aluminum is the basis. Eventually it may solve motor car problems."

"Father hasn't given up the gasoline trolley car. It has been dormant some time, but recently we ran one down the D. T. & I. to Springfield. We believe it will solve many traction problems."

Woman's Tennis Champion of France Fears Our Heat! Also Our Drought!

SUZANNE LENGLEN

BY FRANK TUCKFIELD
(Copyright 1921 by The Lowell Sun)
PARIS, July 29.—"You know, I can't play tennis in this heat," said Suzanne Lenglen, the world's champion, who is sailing July 30 to try for the national women's singles championship of America.

"I was in excellent English that I was greeted by Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, woman's tennis champion of France, who is sailing July 30 to try for the national women's singles championship of America."

"I like the and graceful, Mlle. Lenglen moves with a fawnlike ease and freedom. With deeply tanned skin, bobbed brown hair, vivacious eyes and ever-ready smile, she gives the impression of free, unfettered, joyous youth. She is a wife of a girl whose only care is to live and to enjoy."

American Friends

"I am getting ready for the longest journey I have ever made!" she said exuberantly. "I cannot tell you the joy with which I am looking forward to visiting America. I have so many American friends."

"I always wanted to cross the Atlantic and see that great wonderful country whose life seems to flow so fast and everyone is so prosperous and well-dressed."

Here she broke off. Then, in a low tone:

"I'll let you in on a secret. The reason I put off my sailing date a week was because I feared my wardrobe would be too scanty. American girls are so stylish, I was afraid my dress would suffer by comparison. So I persuaded mother to delay a week so as to enable me to visit the Rue de la Paix."

Fear the Heat

"Are you afraid of the American players?" I asked.

"Not exactly," she rejoined. "But you never know what may happen in tennis. What I fear more than anything is the heat. I understand our little heat wave would go almost unnoticed in New York."

"What do you consider your strongest asset in the game?" I asked.

"Accuracy," she replied. "You know, I began to play when I was 11. Now I am 21. My father used to map out the tennis court and tell me to place the ball in a certain number. When I could do this he would place a handkerchief on the court and tell me to hit it. After this he would place a five-franc piece on the court and he would not let me stop until I could hit that."

Plays Tennis for Fun

"Please don't think tennis is the only thing I can do. I play tennis because it amuses me. I shall stop playing it the day it begins to bore me. There are heaps of other things I like as much if not better."

"I dance, and they tell me not so badly. Of course, I know all American dances."

"I simply adore swimming. I find it keeps me in splendid form. I do a lot of riding and automobile driving. It is of true that you are going to get married?" I asked. A deep blush appeared from beneath the tan of her face.

"Married?" she cried. "I am not even engaged. I suppose I shall find the right man some day, but so far he hasn't appeared. When I do begin collecting for a home though, I shall be plentifully supplied with tea services, powder boxes and bonbonnières which have been showered upon me."

"Do I want to get married? That's a different question."

"By the way, there's one other thing I fear in America besides the heat. That's prohibition. You know, we French people will never be able to understand why people should be deprived of wine at their meals."

Horse Association of America leads movement to recruit a Quarter of a Million Riders

The Horse Association of America is sponsoring a movement to bring out 250,000 horseback riders this summer. An investigation throughout the country has disclosed the fact that horseback riding is once again a favorite American sport and exercise.

Among those riding and training to ride are the professional man and woman, the soldier and ex-soldier, the suburb, the college student, the motion picture star, the business man, and the gayest of them all, the child.

There are definite types of horses bred for riding and driving. They are classified under six general headings: the Thoroughbreds, Arab, Morgan, Hackney, Standard bred trotter and American saddle horse. The last named strain was founded about sixty years ago on thoroughbred stock. He is a distinct breed with five gait. All these breeds contribute to our saddle horse strain.

Bridle Paths

Boston has the best system of bridle paths in the United States. New York ranks fifth, because despite its beautiful paths in Central park and along Riverside drive, it has no outlet into the open country.

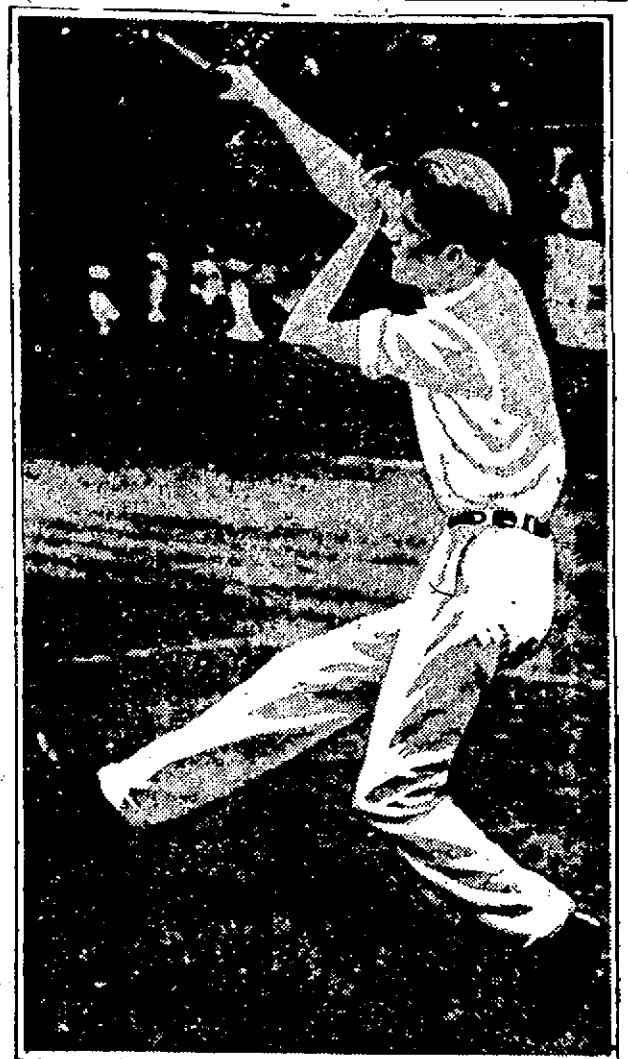

Washington and Philadelphia have fairly good outlets to the open country for riders. Chicago is only a little better than New York in this respect.

Other prominent cities in which there is a need for more bridle paths include Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, Minneapolis, St. Paul, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"At least one man in a hundred should enjoy the benefits of horseback riding," says Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse Association of America. "It is not expensive. It counts the years it adds to one's youth. It is one of the most profitable investments that a business or professional man can make."

The American business man is rapidly becoming a sportsman. Baseball, golf and riding are his prime favorites this year.

The Boy Who Beat Tilden

Here's Vincent Richards in action against William Tilden, world's champion. Richards defeated Tilden three sets in four. One was a love set. It was Tilden's first defeat in more than a year. Richards is only 19.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem Well, Aren't They?

(Apologies to the Spirit of Eugene Field)

A TRIO of baseball fans one day
Were talking about the Game,
And began to shout in a raucous way
Regarding the right to fame
Of certain heroes of whom they spoke.
—And it presently came to be
That all three fans had their noses broke
Because they couldn't agree
Who was the greatest of this great three,
Speaker
Or Ruth
Or Cobb!

THEN a mighty policeman hove in sight,
And seeing his duty clear,
He collared the fighters and stopped the fight;
But as soon as he came to hear
The argument that had caused the row
He said to the bunch, said he,
"I'll take yez all to His Honor, now,
For only a Judo kin see
How yez're gonna decide amongst thim three,
Speaker
Of Ruth
Or Cobb!"

HIS Honor listened to what was said,
But after a little space
He spoke with a shake of his grizzled head
"I cannot decide this case;
I can't say which of these stars is best,
But it's perfectly clear to me
This trio surely outshines the rest
And so we can all agree
That baseball's greatest are three—these three,
Speaker
AND Ruth
AND Cobb!"

Tension Between Allies Has Lessened

LONDON, July 30.—(By the Associated Press)—The tension between Great Britain and France over the procedure to be followed in settling the Upper Silesian problem, has materially lessened, British officials declared this morning. Convening of the allied supreme council on Thursday next has not been definitely determined upon it was stated, but in well-informed quarters here, confidence was expressed that the meeting would be held on that date, either in Paris or in Boulogne. Alleviation of the situation is understood to have come with intimations by the French of their willingness to waive the immediate despatch of troops to Silesia, provided Great Britain associates herself with France in a demand on Germany for facilities for their passage, should the supreme council deem such a movement necessary. The Berlin government has already declared its willingness to accede to such a demand, by the supreme council.

Police Will Have To Pay To See Games

PITTSBURGH, July 30.—Revocation of park privileges to all plain clothes men and detectives except a limited number, was contained in a letter sent today to Director of Public Safety Robert J. Alderdice by Samuel Watters, Secretary of the Pittsburgh Baseball club. Mr. Watters said the privilege had been granted in an effort to break up gambling in the Pirates' park here but that it had proved ineffective. Hereafter, he said the police, except those on duty, will have to pay as others do, to see the game.

Cleveland Signs B. C. Player

BOSTON, July 30.—Ike Kemp, former Boston College high school first baseman, is to be given a trial with the world champion Cleveland team. Manager Speaker, before the team's departure for New York last night, notified Kemp to join the Indians upon their return to Cleveland.

RUTH LEADS IN RUNS

First Major League Player to Hit Century Mark in Runs Scored—Other Averages

CHICAGO, July 30.—Babe Ruth, baseball's home run king, has the distinction of being the first player in the major league to hit the century mark this season in runs scored. The American league slugger has registered 101 times for the Yankees. In the National league, Frank Frisch of the Giants leads in runs scored with 77.

Ruth has stretched his total base record to 355 bases and is batting .355. Harry Hellmann of the Detroit Tigers was the only member of the leading seven batters to add to his point and is heading the list with 430. Ty Cobb dropped a point but continued in second place with 353, while Tris Speaker slumped three notches and is third with 331. Harries of Washington added a brace of stolen bases to his string and leads with 19. His closest rival is George Sisler, the St. Louis star, who is trailing with 16.

Other leading batters: Tomlin, St. Louis, 375; Severid, St. Louis, 362; Williams, St. Louis, 362; Veach, Detroit, 351; E. Collins, Chicago, 331; Sisler, St. Louis, 327; Cleveland, 316.

George Kelly of the Giants got back into his home run stride during the last week and cracked out four circuit drives, bringing his total for the season to 17. Meusel, formerly with the Phillies and now a teammate of Kelly, and Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis star, are tied with 12.

Hornsby continues to top the National league batters with an average of .416.

Tep Young of the Giants and Cutshaw of Pittsburgh are tied with .362, while McNulty of St. Louis is next with .353.

Frisch of New York, who, with 77, is high man for runs scored in the league, is out in front among the base stealers, having added two to his total. His string now is 28.

Other leading base stealers: Meusel, New York, 34; Maraville, Pittsburgh, 34; Fournier, St. Louis, 31; Grimes, Chicago, 30; C. Williams, Philadelphia, 30; Malsb, Chicago, 28; Houch, Cincinnati, 28; Mann, St. Louis, 23.

JACK PERRY SEEKS BOUTS HERE

Jack Perry, a lightweight boxer from western Canada, who has been training here for the past two weeks, under the direction of Martin Flaherty, and who has been at the fighting game for five years, notified The Sun today that he would be glad to meet Frankie Burns, Philney Boyle or any other 133-135 pound boy in this section.

Flaherty says Perry is a classy boxer and looks capable of giving any boy of his weight a battle. He will continue working out at Flaherty's training camp, and will be ready to jump in against any lightweight at a moment's notice.

MINOR LEAGUER WILL PLAY IN MAJORS

LOUIS GUISO

OAKLAND, Cal., July 29.—It's not often that a minor league baseball player can say when and how he'll go to the majors. Most of them are so anxious to get up under the "big tent" that they won't waste a minute when the word comes.

But Louis Guisto, star first sacker for the Oakland club in the Pacific Coast league is different. Louis has just announced that he'll go to the first for the Cleveland Americans.

And he means exactly what he says. He can play first for Speaker any time he desires.

Guisto broke into the Coast League the year before last Wednesday between the bushes. He was purchased by Cleveland, but joined the army, went to France and was gassed. Upon his return he again went to Cleveland, but complained of his lungs and requested that he be returned to the coast.

Twice he has been recalled from the Oakland club, but each time, upon his own request, has been allowed to return. Now he has announced his complete recovery from the effects of the gas.

So you may expect a big hard hitting, fast fielding, first sacker with the Cleveland Americans next spring.

PIRATES PROTEST GIANTS' VICTORY

PITTSBURGH, July 30.—The game played here last Wednesday between the Pittsburgh and New York National League teams has been formally protested by Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club. It was announced today. Grounds for the protest, it was understood, were that Umpire Klem failed to observe the infield fly rule permitting a force play which resulted in a double play. This is said to have halted a batting rally by the Pirates and changed the complexion of the game. Klem has wired his decision to President Heydler.

Two Marriages Will Prop Tottering Royalty With More United States Dollars

By ALICE ROHE

NEW YORK, July 28.—More American dollars will go to bolster the tottering cause of royalty as a result of two approaching international marriages.

During the past 35 years it is estimated that fortunes totaling more than $100,000,000 have gone to various titled foreigners, broke and near-broke, through marriage with the daughters of American millionaires.

These are the latest international marriages to be announced:

William B. Lees, son of Princess Anastasia of Greece, who was the widow of William B. Lees of New York, is to marry Princess Xenia, niece of King Constantine of Greece and daughter of Grand Duchess Marie.

Countessina Emichette Frankenstein, daughter of Count Henri de Frankenstein of Rome, is to wed Don Enrico Barberini, prince of Palestrina. This marriage will bring the grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B.

Brewster of New York into another important princely house, for the Barberinis go back in Roman history to the middle ages.

Just as Princess Anastasia cast her millions into the Greek royalist cause, will the marriage of the Princess Xenia and Lees insure the Greek throne against poverty for at least another generation.

Italy, numerically, has had more of its royalty wedded to American heiresses than any other country. But the matches where the biggest fortunes were obtained were by members of the nobility of other countries.

The Vanderbilt family has paid more than $20,000,000 for husbands of the nobility. The marriage of Consuelo Vanderbilt to the Duke of Marlborough was the occasion for a $12,000,000 pot passing overseas. Of this amount more than $2,500,000 went for the reconstruction of Blenheim castle in Scotland. The duke and duchess were recently divorced. He married another

EXPECT KECK TO BE BIG STAR THIS FALL

By DEAN SNYDER

Stanley Keck, captain of the Princeton eleven, will be ready for the whistle this fall.

Despite the heat of mid-summer he is working daily in molekulus at Chicago.

He is spending the summer with Mark Bates, Princeton freshman, last year. Every day they go through a rigid training program.

They tackle the dummy practice line bucking and goal kicking.

Keck proved himself great enough last fall to be named on the All-American.

He'll be even greater this fall.

their former greatness is truly remarkable.

They seem to have stepped back on the courts from their yesterday's, the same stars they were several years ago as champions.

About them there is still the original poise and mechanical skill.

In other sports a layout of eight or ten years means finish.

But Mrs. Bundy and Miss Browne are in condition to add other bright pages to their former tennis history.

ALLUS WELL

Habe Ruth & Co. showed off before 380,000 fans.

Cleveland was the banner town. Eighty thousand turned out for the series. Detroit was second with 73,000 and Chicago third with 63,000. St. Louis was the weak sister with but 15,000.

This is better by $9,000 than the Yankees drew on their western trip in 1920. Their record swing last year drew a total of 118,000, while their last one made the turnstiles click nearly 400,000 times.

WAKING UP

England is coming back as a world power in sports. The spirit is reviving which makes any nation a worthy leader. The change has been noted since the war.

Her weakness has been her own complacency. She has originated games, taught them to the world, and then sat back satisfied to see other countries develop the stars and cash in.

To be a winner in sport the players must take it seriously.

That is what England has not done in the past.

REMARKABLE

Mrs. May Sutton, Bundy and Miss Mark K. Browne, both come-backs in tennis are playing brilliantly in their early tests.

Fight Typhoid Fever In Woonsocket

WOONSOCKET, R. I., July 30.—State and city health authorities are conferring here today on the best measures to put an end to an epidemic of typhoid fever which has developed in this city during the past week. Early reports today showed 18 cases in the city including seven patients seriously ill with the disease at the Woonsocket hospital. The authorities believe they have located the source of the disease in milk and have taken action which has already barred one dealer from selling any more milk. No deaths have been reported. The local authorities admit that the situation is serious. The first case was reported last Sunday and they have been on the increase since that time. Three new cases were reported early today. The patients in the hospital are said to be in the height of the disease and "very ill."

BAY STATE BOARD SAYS WILSON STILL CHAMP

BOSTON, July 30.—Johnny Wilson is still world middleweight boxing champion so far as the Massachusetts boxing commission is concerned. The decision of Referee Jimmy Gardner that Bryan Downey struck him a foul blow in the seventh round of their bout at Cleveland, Wednesday night, will be recognized by the commission in this state. It was officially announced in the Ohio boxing commission in reversing the referee's award, the Massachusetts commission holds that the referee is the final authority. His appointment by the Ohio commission, Commissioner Eugene N. Buckley of Massachusetts declared, carried with it supreme control over the contest.

Says Downey Champ

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 30.—The Cleveland boxing commission is preparing a statement to be sent to all state boxing commissions and the national boxing commission today—reversing the decision of Referee Jimmy Gardner of Lowell, Mass., and giving the middleweight championship of the world to Bryan Downey of Cleveland. This was announced yesterday by W. B. Wilberding, chairman of the Cleveland boxing commission.

In a bout here Wednesday night, Referee Gardner gave Johnny Wilson of Boston, the champion, the decision on a foul in the seventh round, claiming Downey struck Wilson while the champion was down, following two previous knockdowns.

The local boxing commission reverses Referee Gardner's decision on the ground that, according to the official timekeeper, Wilson was down for 12 1/2 seconds on the first knockdown in the seventh round and for 11 seconds on the second, while Referee Gardner counted only nine on each occasion; that Downey did not hit Wilson while the champion was down and that if a foul was committed it was by a third party, Killian, manager of Wilson, when he placed his hand on his boxer while he was down in the seventh round.

The following protest growing out of the Wilson-Downey bout, Mayor W. B. Fitzgerald yesterday said:

"The next time any general protest is made against any boxing matches being conducted here, I will prohibit further bouts."

JESS BURKETT SHINES AS OLD TIMERS WIN

CLEVELAND, July 30.—While the old-timers were hardly to be expected to show much of their old fire, still all things considered, they did remarkably well yesterday, defeating the ex-and-lotters, 11 to 6. While most of the old-time speed was absent, their enthusiasm kept them going. Cy Young, the hero of 500 major league battles, was on the mound for a couple of innings, and showed that he still possesses a fast ball and a fair curve. He allowed only one run, and at times dazzled the batters who faced him. Chief Zimmer, his old-time catcher in the Cleveland team about 30 years ago, was behind the bat when Cy hurled.

Jess Burkett, formerly leading batsman of the National league, put up a fine game and scored three hits and a pass in four trips to the plate. Nap Lajoie, formerly idol of the Cleveland fans, had a brave of hits, while Bill Bradley was credited with three.

Nick Altrock mixed plenty of fun with his pitching work, thereby allowing the sand lotters to get away with three hits.

Lights of other days, Red Naylor, Heinie Berger and Earl Moore, made good appearances in the box succeeding Cy Young, and Moore shone especially, as he allowed but one hit during two innings.

Braves-Pirates Game

PITTSBURGH, July 30.—The base-ball game between the Pittsburgh and Boston teams, postponed yesterday, will be played off on Sept. 12, as part of a double-header. It was announced today.

AND NOW WE HAVE DOUBLE-DECK DINING TABLE

The proverbial "boarding house reach" was unnecessary at the grub table in the Harding-Ford-Edison-Firestone camp at Licking Creek, Parkbank, Md. In fact it wasn't even necessary to say "please pass," for, by a simple whirl of the upper layer of a double-deck table provided by Host H. S. Firestone, any diner could bring anything, from soup to nuts, sailing around to him. There was occasional amusement at grub hour when two diners simultaneously decided to bring the same viand forth—but the double-deck affair was much handier than the usual camping way of grab. In this picture Harding is shown just to the right of the bouquet, and Mr. and Mrs. Ford next to him. Edison is just to the left of the flowers.

Found Dead in Front of Fashionable Hotel

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 30.—A woman identified as Mrs. Charles Slawson of New York city, a guest at an exclusive resort in Montecito, a suburb, was found shortly before midnight with a bullet hole in her right temple on a pleasure pier in front of a fashionable hotel. She died a few minutes later. Two men who had been standing on the pier said the woman was driven to the pier in an automobile which left immediately while she strolled to the outer end of the structure. A moment later they heard a pistol shot.

19, who are in line for the throne if anything happens to him or if he dies without issue.

Neither will he and his sister and brothers have to marry for money. The royal family is rich and parliament also has a way of providing generous grants for the princes and princesses.

If they did want to marry into royal families, it would prove difficult, because the great war played hob with the king business.

All the German and Austrian lot are in the ex-class and the Bolsheviks killed off the Russian family. The Italians are out of it because their princesses are Catholics and the British royal family may not marry anyone out of the established faith of England. The Greeks are out of it because their mother was a sister of the ex-kaiser.

And when little Princess Mary looks around, here is all she sees:

Duke of Brabant, 20, heir to throne of Belgium.

Czar Boris, 27, of Bulgaria.

Crown Prince Frederick, 22, of Denmark.

Crown Prince of Sweden, 40, and a widower.

In high social circles of the capital, the names of the royal children are never coupled with those of persons of royal lineage.

The Prince of Wales is said to be very much in love with a beautiful young widow who has high social standing, but whose blood is neither purple nor blue. And to make matters more difficult, she has two children.

Princess Mary has no recognized suitors.

One thing is certain—if they please themselves by marrying into English families, they will immensely please the English people.

PRINCE OF WALES, HEIR TO BRITISH THRONE, AND HIS SISTER, PRINCESS MARY

By MILTON BRONNER

LONDON, July 30.—"It is announced that a marriage has been arranged between His Royal Highness, Edward, Prince of Wales, and—"

That's all right so far as it goes, only England's Prince Charming obstinately remains single at the age of 21, just as his only sister and good pal, Princess Mary, does at 24. And all romance-loving England is betting that if they ever do marry, it will be for love—and probably to commoners. Many of their kinsmen on both their father's and their mother's side have made love matches. No reasons of state will compel Prince Edward to wed, because he has three brothers, the Duke of York, 22; Prince Henry, 21, and Prince George,

MISTRESS OF WHITE HOUSE IS A GREAT SOCIAL LEADER

Will Rank With Mrs. Cleveland in This Respect—Her Routine of Duty and Other Lines—When Representative Johnson Sprang at Bergdoll

(Special to The Sun)
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—Some one recently asked, "How does the wife of a president spend her time, and what does she do as 'mistress of the White House'?"

The answer might well be, "She works," for as wife of the president, she first lady of the land finds herself involved in a round of social duties that can't be shifted to other shoulders. She is at the head of the entire social life of the capital of the greatest nation in the world. She must set the pace for all official entertaining, receive all persons properly entitled to call upon her, and must be a wife, a housewife and social arbiter at the same time.

The wives of other presidents have had a similar course to follow, except in instances where they were recognized as invalids, and were relieved from social duties by some other member of the presidential family. This was especially noticeable in the McKinley administration as Mrs. McKinley's health permitted no responsibility of any sort whatever.

But let's take the daily routine of Mrs. Harding's life in the White House, for example. In the first place Mrs. Harding continues her life-long custom of getting up early and having breakfast with the president long before the eyes of the society women of the city have been opened to the morning light.

Breakfast finished, the president goes to the executive office and Mrs. Harding to her study, where, assisted by her social secretary, Miss Harlan, she goes through an amount of mail that would stagger a business man. People ask for all sorts of information and favors. "Will you contribute a handkerchief for our sale?" "Will you be a patroness of the concert to be given for the benefit, etc." "Will you use your influence with the president to bring about" this or that piece of legislation; begging letters, letters asking for endorsement of proposed "uplift" measures; personal questions regarding her daily life and habits, and a thousand and one matters which would never be thrust upon the attention of any woman other than the wife of a president. But Mrs. Harding is trained to a business life through her close connection with the work of Mr. Harding as publisher and business man. This stands her in good stead now, for she is able at a glance to sift the wheat from the chaff, and turn off the work with speed and without annoyance.

ABLE TO DO HER WORK

After Long Suffering Mrs. Siefert Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pottsville, Pa.—"I suffered with female trouble for four or five years and was very irregular. I was not fit to do my work at times and took medicine from a doctor and got no benefit. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers and took it and got all right. I gained twenty pounds or more and am now able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and you may use this fact as a testimonial."—Mrs. SALLIE SIEFERT, 313 W. Fourth Street, Pottsville, Pa.

The everyday life of many housewives is a continual struggle with weakness and pain. There is nothing more wearisome than the ceaseless round of household duties and they become doubly hard when some female trouble makes every bone and muscle ache, and nerves all on edge.

If you are one of these women do not suffer for four or five years as Mrs. Siefert did, but profit by her experience and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

a brief interval, in which Mrs. Harding may stroll through the big rose garden which flanks the south porch of the White House, or sit a while in the shadows of the thick vines which shelter that Colonial porch from the hot rays of a summer sun. Then comes luncheon which the president and usually some men of prominence in political circles share—for the president's lunch combines business with "the noon-day snack." After the Tuesday and Friday cabinet meetings, Secretary or War Weeks, Secretary of the navy and Secretary of State Hughes, together with Postmaster General Hays are pretty sure to say "yes" to the president's cordial "You had better stay to lunch today, we can talk it over at leisure then. In fact, it is a pretty safe guess that very many of the great and far-reaching policies of the nation are determined at the simple luncheons in the state dining room, with Mrs. Harding sitting just across the polished mahogany table, from the seat the president occupies. After lunch, the president goes back to his office, and Mrs. Harding keeps other appointments with a round of official visitors. Late in the afternoon Mrs. Harding may get a breathing spell and perhaps join the president in a drive to the golf links and where she spends a pleasant hour on the veranda of the clubhouse, while the president makes the rounds. And between while, during the routine of official life, Mrs. Harding finds time for a lot of charitable work, to do many things for the pleasure and welfare of the wounded and maimed boys out at the Walter Reed hospital; direct the housekeeping of the great establishment of which she is the head; to receive the members of the senate, congressional and diplomatic circles and perform the varied duties of the wife of the executive. She has shaken hands with tens of thousands of people—and greeted them one and all with true cordiality and a genuine welcome. She is a wonder, and her enthusiasm and good comradeship are never failing. It's a 50-50 guess that when the Harding administration comes to an end, it will be Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Grover Cleveland Preston who will go down in history as the most diplomatic, charming and successful hostesses the White House has ever known.

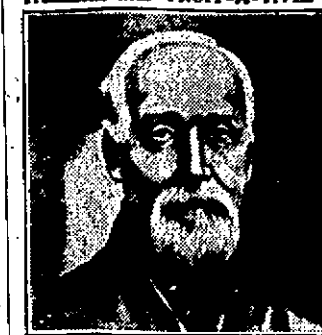

State Dinners
The Hardings, as did the Cleverlands, make dinner a quiet family affair, except when a state dinner is on the program, although they frequently invite intimate friends to dine informally with them. These informal invitations are given over the telephone. The Wilsons did peripatetically entertaining beyond what official etiquette called for, except the frequent visits of Mrs. Wilson's immediate family, who lived scarcely a stone's throw from the White House. President Wilson did not enjoy dinner giving or informal entertaining, and apparently both the first and second Mrs. Wilson were entirely content to follow his wishes in that respect. The Tafts and the Roosevelts kept "open house" where boys, girls and grown-ups were ever present and ever welcome guests; and the Hardings are living as near a normal home life as it is possible for the chief executive of a nation to do.

Surprised the Luncheon Club
President and Mrs. Harding have set a new precedent-breaking pace this week. It has for a century been an unwritten law that a president may not accept social invitations from individuals, although occasionally he may appear at organization banquets and the like. Neither the first President been available for social affairs among her personal friends. But the Hardings are very fond of their former colleagues in the senatorial circle, regardless of political faith. So when Mrs. Coolidge, wife of the vice president suggested to Mrs. Harding that she should "come to the next luncheon" given by the Luncheon club of which Mrs. Harding was a former member, and which is composed entirely of women of senators' families, Mrs. Harding immediately accepted. And when the hour came Mrs. Harding, Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Pomeroy—wife of a democratic senator—surprised the other members and brought them to their feet by walking into the room just as lunch was being served, and Mrs. Harding joined them at the table in the same old fashion as when she was merely a club member instead of mistress of the White House. And the same week the president made a week-end camping out trip with Henry Ford and a few other well known men, sleeping in tents, cooking over camp fires and having as unconventional and merry an outing as if he were not president of the greatest nation in the world, and this week will visit the up-country summer home of Secretary of War John W. Weeks, on the edge of the White mountains, where he can join in the haying, tend sheep, catch brook trout and otherwise live a back-to-nature life.

MOSES MURPHY

Moretown, Vermont, March 27th 1918.

"I am warranted in having the strongest faith in 'Fruit-a-tives' after receiving such wonderful benefits from them. For years, I was a sufferer with Kidney and Liver Complaints. My back ached; my liver was sluggish; and my whole system seemed out of order.

'Fruit-a-tives' was the only remedy to help me. They strengthened the kidneys, made my bowels move regularly and freed me of all the distress caused from the kidney trouble, constipation and indigestion.

A few weeks treatment with 'Fruit-a-tives' made me feel as if I had a new lease on life, and I am glad to make known the great value of these Fruit Liver Tablets."

Bergdoll meeting of investigation when Braun, a brother of Bergdoll, called Representative Johnson of Kentucky a liar, recalls an earlier episode in congress, in which Mr. Johnson was one of the two stars. Now Johnson is not the sort of man whom it is quite safe to call a liar, and Chairman John H. Peters of Maine knew his job when he did not lose a minute in adjourning the meeting and catching hold of Johnson's coat-tail while he shouted out the words. Johnson is a man of powerful build, tall, stocky, and in spite of his years in the very pink of condition. He is a genuine southern breeder and in the old days didn't hesitate to plug his man with whatever weapon came handiest. And he is proud of that old record, too. Fortunately for Braun, Johnson was sitting at the far end of the long committee table so the quick plunge he made for the witness was intercepted by other members of the committee, who held Johnson back by leg, arm and body till the sergeant-at-arms could hustle Braun out of the room. Peters of Maine, instantly shouted, "The meeting is adjourned," then grabbed Johnson, with a grip hinting Peters' own height and strength.

All this recalls an exciting scene in the house a few years ago when Uncle Joe Cannon was speaker and Johnson who as chairman of an important committee resented a ruling made by the speaker. White with rage at what he regarded as a personal affront, Johnson strode down the middle aisle of the great house chamber, and approaching close to the speaker's desk shouted: "If it were not for your age, I'd throw a brick at you." Leaning far over the intervening desk, the slender old gray-haired speaker looked Johnson squarely and fearlessly in the face. Then said with cutting coldness and deliberation, "I beg you do not let my age stand in your way." For a moment the situation was tense. Uncle Joe stood with gavel up-raised, while a hundred men rushed to Johnson's side to restrain him. Then Uncle Joe let the gavel fall with the usual announcement, "The house will be in order," the uproar ceased and the incident was closed.

That time the sympathy was all with Uncle Joe, but it's a safe guess that this time the committee and crowd of on-lookers were with Johnson heart and soul. But they say there wasn't much spare room left under that long committee table by the time all the women—and some of the men—present, had made successful dives from their exposed seats between the deliberators.

And to the old timers in the press gallery, who know Johnson's long reach and his intensity of purpose, that dive of spectators was regarded as evidence of sound judgment.

STOP BUILDING LOWELL STREETS WITH LOWELL LABOR AND BRING TO LOWELL CHEAP HELP FROM BOSTON WHERE THOUSANDS ARE OUT OF WORK

That's what you will do if you vote for contract labor. Which is the more important—

Provide work for our own citizens, who are specialists in their line, or have them line up in the charity department?

Here is the Real Issue of this Campaign--

To put through this scheme of contract labor, which means graft and corruption on the part of contractors and officials on the one hand, and the elimination of Lowell labor on the other, the Chamber of Commerce Advertising Campaign has resorted to a desperate campaign of misrepresentation.

They allege that our streets are in bad condition.

It is true. Some of them are.

But they do not say that we have also the best paved streets in America, built by Lowell labor. For proof of this statement look at Merrimack, Central, Gorham, Bridge, Pawtucket, Thorndike, Dut-ton, East Merrimack and many other streets which have paving that will last fifty years without repairs—built by Lowell labor.

The Chamber of Commerce does not tell you that every city in the state is two years behind its street building program because of the war, when labor was scarce and materials were high.

Lowell has the best paved streets and the best cared for streets at this moment, than any other city in Massachusetts, including Boston, where, under contract labor, the principal streets of the city are in horrible condition.

IT IS AN ABSOLUTE LIE

When the Chamber of Commerce advertises that the cost per yard of paving in Lowell is $13 a square yard. According to figures at the office of Commissioner Murphy, street paving has averaged from $4 to $6 a yard on all the jobs done throughout the city.

What confidence can the people have in anything the Chamber of Commerce does if these false figures and untruths are published?

Is That the Reason Why the Chamber of Commerce fails to Sign the Name of Any Person Responsible for the Statements Printed?

THE PAVING REFERENDUM

What is this special election that is to be held here August 9? Why was it necessary to bring it on at this time?

There are questions that will be asked by a great many people who have not paid much attention to the events leading up to the decision to hold the election.

The condition of our public streets aroused unfavorable comment throughout the city. The owners of autos were particularly bitter in their criticism of the streets, because of the injury to their cars resulting from riding over streets cut up by traffic and showing holes and broken patches in which the surface had been torn away. Taxpayers also felt that better streets would improve their property, and hence they favored the movement.

The chamber of commerce took up the matter and favored having smooth paving done by contract. The municipal council having refused to be a party to contract work even on a single street, the chamber then decided to invoke the initiative provision of the city charter. As the council still remained obdurate, the alternative of submitting the question to a referendum of the people was obligatory under the charter, and thus the date for the election was fixed.

Now that the election will be held a week from next Tuesday, the people want to know the merits of the case. Nobody can deny that most of our public streets are in very bad condition. There must be an improvement. How will it be obtained? The question of expense enters here and should be considered in deciding the issue at the polls. Already the assessors have announced that the tax rate this year will be not less than $30. It may be more; but even at that figure, there will be a very general increase in rents which will affect every workman as well as every taxpayer.

The Sun favors this movement to meet an emergency and to give us better streets at a reasonable cost. The opponents of the plan raise a howl that contractors will rob the city. That is a false alarm and the fact that corruption may be shown in other cities under the contract system, does not prove that contract grafting will be permitted in Lowell. It cannot be termed robbery if a contractor gives a bond as a guarantee that he will give the city block paving at a price much lower than what it would cost if done by the street department.

Those who are opposed to the contract system assume the role of defenders of street department extravagance. The men of the street department will not be dropped. They will have all they can do on repairs and while they are endeavoring to repair the streets that are in poor condition, the contractors can be laying block paving on the streets that need it most.

This is a great movement for public improvements that will make our city a better place in which to live and do business. We are on the eve of a new era of civic progress for the city of Lowell. When the splendid auditorium and the magnificent high school are finished, Lowell will have reason to be proud of her municipal buildings and will be in a position to compete with the cities of the country for conventions as well as for new industries. Nothing gives strangers such a favorable impression of a city as good streets and fine public buildings. We are moving toward the realization of a high civic ideal.

An appeal was made a few days ago to local service men asking them to vote against contract work on street construction, as it would bring in men from the outside, perhaps from the South Sea Islands, to work on Lowell streets. If it does, then the municipal council will be blamed for to the council will be entrusted the duty to see that Lowell labor, so far as obtainable, is employed. Service men know the meaning of the following plain terms:

"Such contract shall be entered into, only after bids therefor have been called for by public advertisement, and shall contain such legal provisions for the employment of laborers of persons resident in Lowell as the municipal council shall approve."

That is the wording of the initiative petition and it completely demolishes the charges that laborers at $2 per day will be imported from distant places. Thus it appears that in the interests of the workman, the taxpayer, the auto owner, and citizens in general, every registered voter should vote "yes" at the coming special election. The women in particular should make an effort to vote on this occasion, as it will redound to their pleasure and benefit if the city has first-class streets. The movement for better streets is for the greatest good of the greatest number and it is directed only against inefficiency in our street department as indicated by the broken and even dangerous condition of a great many of our public streets.

OBEY THE LAW

A significant utterance slipped from the lips of one of the witnesses in the trial of District Attorney Tufts before the supreme court. The witness stated, and apparently no one has attempted to dispute the accuracy of his assertion, that it has been the custom of district attorneys of Middlesex county for many years to ignore certifications from the superior court of divorces granted on the ground of adultery. It is suspected that the alleged practice in Middlesex has been followed in most of the other counties of the state.

The law of the state requires that whenever the evidence introduced in a divorce case in the superior court is considered sufficiently conclusive to warrant the granting of a divorce, the court shall certify the facts in the case to the office of the district attorney of the county in which the case is tried. The law certainly presumes that the district attorney shall take steps to bring to punishment the party who has been adjudged guilty by a superior court judge of having violated a law of the state by the commission of a crime which the law-makers looked upon as being sufficiently serious to warrant the imposition of a prison sentence.

It is difficult to understand why district attorneys have come to look with such leniency upon offenders whose acts have struck at the foundation of family life and social decency. In view of the fact that the divorce finding practically amounts to a conviction of guilt, it cannot be that the law officers have been held back in the performance of their duty through belief that it would be difficult to obtain sufficient evidence to warrant convictions.

It is not a symptom of healthy public sentiment that this wholesome provision of the law for the protection of the home and society has been permitted to become practically a dead letter without a serious protest being made. It would doubtless be better to have the statute wiped out than to have a continuance of its nullification.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

It would be interesting doubtless, if we could look into the minds of some residents of Lowell who have most recently arrived from foreign shores and see their ideas and conceptions of American institutions and the new life into which they have entered.

To many of the so-called "foreigners" the policemen on the beat stands perhaps more than anything else for the new government under which they have come to live. In his blue coat and brass buttons he is a symbol to many as unoppressive as the arrival of the embodiment of Uncle Sam. As the officer is courteous, kindly and helpful or gruff, grouchy and over-aggressive, he may help to produce a local citizen or a disgruntled and irritated person who falls easily for the absurd doctrines of "Red" agitators.

Through ignorance of the law, or from causes due to their having been rooted up from all of the conventions and restrictions of their home lands, some of our foreign friends find their way into the lower courts. It would seem to be wholly desirable that they should there receive an impression of the orderly dignity of the law that will place it in a favorable light in their eyes.

Many of our police courts—and the one in Lowell is a notable example—are not housed as they should be. They are in dismal and dingy quarters. They are not always over-clean. The proceedings are often conducted with a lack of decorum and orderliness that must appear strange to eyes accustomed to the dignified procedure and pomp of European courts of justice.

Sooner or later this city, in conjunction with the county, must take into consideration the matter of providing more satisfactory quarters for the local district court. The present room and been used for many years and is now far from being suitable for the purposes for which it is utilized. The room is unavoidably noisy, and even the judge upon the bench not infrequently, is obliged to strain his ears to keep track of the proceedings.

THE IRISH OUTLOOK

The Irish republicans seem to have arrived at the same impasse which defeated the work of the constitutional convention a few years ago. Ireland, was told she could have home rule just as soon as Ulster and the rest of Ireland could agree upon a definite plan. That was the reason that it was known in advance that Ulster would not agree to any form of home rule in which she would have to lose her ascendancy. For over a century Ulster has enjoyed government favors and at the opening of the war, England allowed her to plan and threaten revolution and even an alliance with Germany if home rule were granted. At the protest of Ulster the home rule act was revoked and the partition act enacted. That led to the rebellion.

Again Ulster blocks a settlement, and it is futile for the republicans longer to indulge in any arrangement that will restore the unity of Ireland and place a single parliament over the entire nation to be ruled by a popular majority. It is in order for the government, therefore, to bring Ulster to terms if the leaders hold out against the self-determination demanded by the Irish people. England is not settling the Irish question if she imposes an impossible condition. She might as well say to the people of Ireland, "If your leaders fly to the moon, they can afterwards have any kind of government they want except that which would cut them off from the empire for whose protection the connection must be maintained."

The situation is reported as hopeful; but the Irish leaders are struggling against the obstinacy of Ulster for which there is no defensible reason. But if Ulster holds out and is permitted to destroy this opportunity of settling the question, then the struggle will be renewed and blood will continue to flow on both sides.

EXTORTION IN COAL

Fuel Administrator Hultman has found that the Hudson Coal company of New York is selling coal cheaper to Canadian dealers than to those of New England; and yet, there seems to be no remedy. Last year New England was mulcted in the sum of seven million dollars by the coal speculators in charges over and above the price at which coal was sold for to other parts of the country. It is hoped that they will not be allowed to work a similar extortion upon the people of New England this year.

It seems that the United States senators should look into this matter with a view to protecting their constituents against this bare-faced extortion. The New England states should act in unison on this matter, which equally affects all of them.

AIRPLANE CARRIERS

Senator King wants war stopped on six battleships, and two cruisers now building converted into airplane carriers. He backs his senate resolution on the recent airplane-battleship tests off the Atlantic coast.

According to the senator these tests proved that battleships are obsolete.

Undoubtedly the tests proved that the air service is becoming an increasingly important factor in naval strength.

Both Great Britain and Japan recognized this long ago by incorporating airplane carriers in their building programs.

These carriers are ships of great speed and the largest of them, a Japanese carrier, has a capacity of 30 airplanes. In a fleet action, all other factors being equal, the advantage to a fleet with one or two such units is obvious.

Senator King is right in demanding airplane carriers for our navy, but not as substitutes for battleships.

A GOOD SUGGESTION

The suggestion of Senator Borah that decision on the plan for refunding the eleven billion dollars owed by foreign nations, be postponed until after the Washington disarmament conference, has much to commend it.

While there is no direct connection between this foreign debt and disarmament there is a very close connection between the financial situation in which the nations of the world find themselves and the vast expenditures for armaments.

We can afford to be a much more generous creditor if by agreement we can cut our armament expenditures to a nominal figure.

Without indulging in any threats the American delegates to the conference could very well point this out to the delegates of the debtor nations if they fail to take a reasonable view of our disarmament proposals.

SUCCESS

If an epitaph be written on John Wanamaker's tombstone, he wants it to read something like this: "This man knew how to advertise."

To advertising intelligently and persistently the famous merchant attributes a large part of his success.

He started early. The first day he was in business as a storekeeper he took in $2.67—and a straightaway spent $2.4 of it for advertising. "The best investment I ever made," he says.

The latest report of the superintendent of streets should furnish convincing evidence to any who may be in doubt on the subject that, with new construction work in the hands of contractors, there will be an abundance of employment in repair work for the highway department workers.

The superintendent is to be congratulated on putting a permanent repair gang to work. It is certainly much needed.

The British ambassador evidently is not such a mighty personage after all. The British government tells him that he should not receive a certain personal friend as a guest in the embassy and he stands at attention and answers "Aye, aye, sir," as subserviently as the humblest English "Tommy."

That rupture between Premier Lloyd George and Lord Northcliffe is becoming more acute. The cancellation of the ambassadorial dinner at Washington is a direct slap at the great newspaperman. Nevertheless, he will ultimately triumph.

Perhaps the location of the municipal bathing beach was selected with the end in view that people would enjoy the cooling waters more if it were necessary that they should get all "hot up" in getting to it. Still it is worth the trip.

The Billerica finance committee is soon to get into action for the year, and it may be expected that citizens up that way will begin to complain that the members are poking their noses into too many things that have no connection with finances.

Not many bouquets have been moving in the direction of the Eastern Massachusetts street railway lately. It richly deserves to be commended, though, for its cheap and attractive excursions to the beach during this torrid summer.

Japan finally decides to enter the peace-parley with certain reservations. She naturally fears a sort of combination of the English-speaking peoples as a result of widespread British propaganda in an effort to realize such union.

Two billion dollars for the farmers, who stayed at home and reaped rich profits during the war, but not a penny for a bonus for the soldiers who fought, seems to be the avowed policy of the Harding administration.

The mounting death rate should be an incentive for the city departments to get together and give the children street shower baths as has been done with such happy results in other places.

"Vacation Travel is Light," says a headline. Just below it is the statement, "No inducements in the shape of reduced rates are being offered to tourists." Is this a case of effect and cause?

The initiative election publicity of the chamber of commerce illustrates anew that the most effective advertisement is that which deals with solid facts.

Why not Armistice day for the first meeting of the international disarmament conference? It would be in accordance with the eternal fitness of things.

Safety first—get the fire hydrants in shape for use.

The best is none too good if you can afford it.

An optimist is one who looks upon a long season of unusual hot weather as a preparatory school.

Give a youth with a half of one percent, brain an automobile and then read about it in the newspaper.

One way of being charitable is to put yourself in the other fellow's shoes before passing judgment upon him.

Life guards are human. That's why they pay so much attention to pretty bathers in captivating bathing togs while homely mortals are left to splash for themselves.

It's a long hark back to the days when we came home from the dance, behind the old gray mare, the reins thrown over the dasher, our arms around Mary Ann and her precious head on our shoulder.

A Hot Springs widow says the latest proposal she has received was from a Central avenue barber, who said that after working hard all day he longs to go home to a face that doesn't need anything done to it.

The City Rubes

She had been visiting on a farm for a week and was, letting the world know it. Her companion, also, apparently had seldom been off the brick streets. "And how is the corn this year?" the companion asked. "Doing just fine," was the reply, "but the alpaca needs irrigating, Mr. Brown said."

An Important Query

"Father," said a little boy thoughtfully, as he watched his parent collect his notes and arrange the lantern slides for a church entertainment, "why is it that when you spend your holiday in the Holy Land you always give a lantern lecture on it? You never do when you have been to Paris?"

The Wise-Talker

"Mr. Smith," a man asked his tailor, "how is it you have not called on me for your account?" "O, I never ask a gentleman for money." "Indeed! How, then, do you get on if he doesn't pay?" "Why," replied the tailor, after a momentary hesitation, "after a certain time I conclude he is not a gentleman, and then I ask him."

The Vacation Problem

"Where'll I spend my vacation?" You've asked yourself the question a hundred times. You've studied folders from mountain and seaside resorts, summer hotels, jazz resorts and excursions. When some of America's most famous men—Edison, Ford and Firestone wanted a rest, they went back to nature, in a portable camp in the woods. There's a tip for you in that. For after all, there's nothing so refreshing as a quiet night under the stars, a sizzling meal over a campfire and a sparkling drink from an old oaken bucket.

A Mentality Test

Off for Maine

Good-bye, old town; I'm leaving you for just a little while; My trunk is packed and time moves all too slow. The soaring pines are calling me from many a balmy mile; Old town forgive me if I want to go. Read now in my impatience aught of penance or reproach.

Full soon our interest begins to wane In midday street at fever heat, In blazing midnight roof, I'm off for Kennebago, off for Maine!

Good-bye, old books; To you how strange and bootless it may seem To loiter on his right and proper shelf.

And all at once—when last came true so wild, so weird a dream? I can't remember when it was myself.

You'll have a rest while I'm away, you folios of wit, Philosophy, romance and verses vain;

A book of files is all the books that's in my crowded kit, I'm off for Kennebago, off for Maine!

Good-bye, old den! When I am gone a soulless brush and broom Will dispossess each molecule of dust.

That with a nice disorder made you more than just a room— A shrine, a place to labor when I must.

And while the odors of new paint from your renaissance rise I'll breathe the bracing scent of silver rain.

Or sleep with soothing starlight on my tired but happy eye, I'm off for Kennebago, off for Maine!

Good-bye, Minette! My last good-bye I've saved, you see, for you. Miss me a while while I am gone; I shall have learned to sue For your regard with warmer, bolder skill.

Perhaps you will have learned to care, perhaps you will wear for me, Will share with me love's light and golden chain.

This thought, this hope, my dearest one, the summer long will be by Kennebago, at the top of Maine.

A Woman's Health Four Colonial Premiers to Shape British Position at Conference

Every woman's health is peculiarly dependent upon the condition of her blood. How many women suffer with headache, pain in the back, poor appetite, weak digestion, a constant feeling of weariness, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, pallor and nervousness? If you have any of these symptoms, do not despair of getting better, but begin now, today, to build up your blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. See how the nervous energy of the body is restored as the blood becomes pure and red and the entire system is strengthened to meet every demand upon it.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are useful for all women, but they are particularly valuable to girls of school age who show symptoms of going into a decline, who become pale, nervous and languid. These pills aid in securing perfect development and health by strengthening the system and purifying and building up the blood. Thin blood during the growing years of a girl's life usually means a flat-chested and hollow-cheeked womanhood. There can be neither health nor beauty without red blood which gives brightness to the eyes and color to cheeks and lips.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

The weather man has been trying out some very effective camouflage on Lowell people this week. He's getting them all worked up in the expectation of severe thunder storms and then fooling them by not going through with his threats. For instance, about 10 o'clock Wednesday night many Lowell people heard distinct rumbles of what sounded like thunder. They rolled over the city just as though a heavy storm were brewing. Flashes in the sky were interpreted as the advance guard of a good old-fashioned electrical storm. But no storm came, not a drop of rain fell and those who had sufficient presence of mind to look heavenward found the sky dotted with stars. The "thunder and lightning" were nothing more than the explosion of fireworks at Lakeview park, a friend tells me. Camouflage No. 2 came Thursday night shortly after 5:30 when the sky actually darkened, huge black clouds rolled across the horizon and there were a few claps of thunder. The wind blew in regular hurricane style. The stars were set perfectly for one of the biggest storms of the season. There was a hurried rush to close windows and to take in clothes that were out drying. People away from home in their summer finery made for places of shelter. Then after all this preparation a few drops of rain fell and it was all over. Not even a heavy clap of thunder came with the rain. What a gay old deception the weather man can be when he wants to!

In line with the influx of women into men's work in the cities it is interesting to note that women in far larger numbers are taking up farming. Census bureau reports show that 231,253 women today are operating farms, totalling 25,798,400 acres and averaging 95.6 acres to the farm. Percentage of farms operated by women in the states varied from 1.9 per cent of the whole in Nebraska to 7.2 per cent in Rhode Island.

The hearing held by Mayor Thompson on the charge made by Alexander Cruickshank against the police department, brought out the fact that Captain Atkinson took the liberty of coining the prisoner brought in on complaint of Mr. Cruickshank to be held for "safe keeping" and not as a suspicious person. That showed that Officer Aldrich, who made the arrest, had the prisoner booked as a suspicious person at the station. The officer was, therefore, not responsible for having him held merely for safe keeping.

At least three of the premiers, Hughes, Massey and Meighan, are considered almost certain to attend. Attendance of Britain's colonial premiers will not give that nation an extra number of "votes" in the conference. It is said in official circles. Many protests were made against the make-

By HARRY HUNT
WASHINGTON, July 30.—Great Britain's position at the coming conference on disarmament and the adjustment of far eastern affairs will be largely shaped by the pressure of the premiers of her four great colonies—Meighan of Canada, Hughes of Australia, Massey of New Zealand, and Smuts of South Africa.

Australia, particularly, is intensely interested in the far eastern questions that will be raised at the conference. Premier Hughes has been the chief proponent for the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, on the ground that such an alliance fortified the cause of "white Australia" and sheltered that country from encroachment by Japan.

To a lesser degree the same is true of New Zealand. Canada's interest runs largely parallel to that of the United States.

This government has indicated its willingness to adjust the time of the conference to suit the convenience of these colonial premiers, but stressing the desire that it be not later than November.

At least three of the premiers, Hughes, Massey and Meighan, are considered almost certain to attend. Attendance of Britain's colonial premiers will not give that nation an extra number of "votes" in the conference. It is said in official circles. Many protests were made against the make-up of the assembly of the League of Nations for the same reason. There must be no votes, as such. There must be either agreement by such nation, or disagreement. The colonial premiers, as members of the delegation of Great Britain, might help sway the decision of that nation, but that would be a matter inside the British group. The final decision would come as the stand of the British government, which of course would be presented as a unit, as would the decisions of Japan, the United States, or other nations participating.

Aside from the self-interest of Australia and New Zealand in desiring a renewal of the Anglo-Jap alliance, the feeling in official quarters here is one of friendliness toward the participation in the conference of the heads of Britain's colonies. In the main their interests are more nearly parallel, to those of the United States, than are those of England.

Alexander the Great is said to have been buried in a gold coffin.

Nancy, Nick and Sprinkle-Blow watched to see what would happen. Marky Mink was down on the bottom of the pool, watching his chance to reach up and grab Blackie Bass while Cob Coon in the willow-tree overhead was going to grab him from above. Neither knowing the other was there. Cob Coon had one hand in the water by this time, reaching down and down. "This is the place," he kept whispering to himself. "I ought to know, for I've watched Blackie for years and he always stays in the same spot, except in winter. Ha!" he cried out all at once. "I've got something. I've got him!" But suddenly his smile faded. "Here you, Blackie, don't bite me that way!" he yelled. "Boy, hold on, don't pull so hard! I didn't know you could pull so. Oh, I'm slipping! Leggo, Blackie! Help! Help! Oh, he—!"

The last word was just a gurgle for

Cob went splash right down into the creek, the muddy water closing over the top of his head. Just then there was a huffing and a puffing up in the sky and West Wind blew the clouds away from Mr. Moon's round face. Mr. Moon, shut off from his view of the world so long, was curious to see what was going on and glowed as brightly as he could. This is one thing he saw. Great rings were spreading themselves rapidly over the top of Willow-Tree Pool where Blackie Bass lived; then suddenly in the middle of the rings the water spouted up like a great geyser, splashing the ground for yards around. The next instant two furry figures appeared.

Marky Mink and Cob Coon were pummeling each other. They had grabbed each other by mistake in the muddy water, and they were as cross as two bears.

FAYETTE STREET WOMAN WINS HOPE CHEST

The hope chest offered by St. Margaret's parish as the prize of a drawing contest in connection with its recent lawn party has been awarded to Mary Clark of 155 Fayette street. The drawing was held last evening on the grounds of St. Peter's orphanage with Mayor Thompson performing the honors. The drawing was supervised by Rev. Charles J. Galligan, pastor of St. Margaret's, and Dr. Frank Brady. Later in the evening Rev. Fr. Galligan and the mayor called upon Miss Clark to inform her of her good luck and to extend their congratulations. The chest contained a wide assortment of articles, valued at several hundred dollars.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By Theatres' Own Press Agents.)

MERRIMACK SQ. THEATRE

A "Wise Fool," Melford Production.

Feature for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday

You can step into any theatre to witness an amusing and funny but if you are of the type insistent on the best and only the best at all times your Lowell amusement headquarters should be the Merrimack Square theatre. Here you are sure of seeing the best obtainable photoplays.

The features of the Sunday program will be "Oh, Lady, Lady," starring pretty Bebe Daniels, and "Merely Mary Ann," starring the lovely Mary Ann.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be red letter days at this theatre. The big features will be "A Wise Fool," George Melford production, adapted from one of Sir Gilbert Parker's stories, and "The Lost Romance," a William De Mille photoplay.

Sir Gilbert Parker, author of "The Money Master," which was made into the picture "The Master of Deceit," is one of the foremost writers of modern day fiction. His books have been most popular with the public, and especially his stories, which have been made into the screen, have been most popular.

In immediate detail, the lives of the people of that locale, and their respective eccentricities, habits and customs. That his books lend themselves readily to the screen was shown by the success of "Behold My Wife," which was founded on Sir Gilbert's novel, "The Transfiguration of a Savage."

The story of "The Wise Fool" is one of great appeal. Jean Jacques Barville, a wealthy egotist and philosopher in a small Parish of Quebec sets out to see the world, and turns his course towards Paris. Finding himself alone and unknown in the great French city, he starts on his return home where he is the idol and leader of his people. On the steamship he meets Sebastian Dolores, a Spanish impoverished exile and his pretty daughter, Carmen.

The vessel strikes an iceberg and Jean Jacques is the hero of the hour. When the craft sinks, he is about to perish, not being a good swimmer, but Carmen who is clinging to a piece of wreckage, comes to his assistance and they get to shore. Jean Jacques, however, takes her and her indolent father to his home. A daughter, Zoe, is born.

After some years, because of Jean Jacques' untimely death, and because the people of his parish have never really welcomed her, Carmen becomes restless, and falls in love with George Masson, a carpenter, who comes to mend the mill dam. Jean Jacques overhears them plotting to elope, and the next day almost takes Masson's life, but at the latter's pleading, spares him.

Carmen goes to Masson, who refuses to betray Jean Jacques, whereupon Carmen goes to Montreal to earn her living as a chorus girl. The manager insults her and she takes refuge in a convent. Zoe, Jean Jacques' daughter, now falls in love with Gerald Fynes, a "man from outside," against her father's will. From this point on the story becomes increasingly interesting. The climax is one of the most surprising witnessed in a photoplay in many months.

The other feature for the first half of the week is "The Lost Romance," starring Conrad Nagel and Lois Wilson. It is a Paramount picture dealing with a vital theme of every day life and telling a story of wonderful appeal. It has been produced with all the artistry, naturalness and human appeal that made William De Mille's "Midsummer Madness" a popular record-breaker.

Sunday—Bebe Daniels in "Oh, Lady, Lady." Also "Merely Mary Ann"

Rajah has fled to the desert taking Arlee with him. The two rescuers experience some trouble in getting out of the palace and resume their search. Following a clue, they reach the Rajah's pretentious Indian encampment, and then in a stirring climax the story comes to a close with Arlee so thankful at being free again that she never wants to see again "The Palace of Darkened Windows."

A "divorce of convenience" with Owen Moore, assisted by his wife, Katherine Perry, is another of his delightful comedy characterizations and will be the second feature for the first of the week. The story in one that was written especially for Mr. Moore by Victor Heerman, who both wrote and directed Owen Moore in his recent triumph. "The Chicken in the Case" Photoplay fans who witnessed this performance remember it as one of the bright comedy features of the past year. In constructing this new farce the author conceived the idea of a man with the result that no picture in which Mr. Moore has yet appeared, was quite as suitable for him. It is a straight comedy with farcical variety that was made for laughing purposes.

Besides the above double feature program, there will be the usual comedy and International Weekly, as well as musical numbers on the organ. Mahel Norman in "What Happened to Rosa," is to be one of the contributions to the program for the last days of the week, starting with matinee on Thursday. It's a bright and happy combination of humor and romance, and the star is simply great. Hugh Thompson, handsome and debonair, appears opposite the star. He does a big fight for her, and lots of exciting episodes.

The second feature is Frank Mayo in "The Blazing Trail." The novel situation of a brilliant young physician losing his identity and joining an illiterate community in the Blue Ridge mountains has been made the basis of this offering. Mayo is seen as the young physician who has been brain-fagged as a result of his continuous scientific labors and on advice of his physician, goes into the illiterate country to be relieved of his pressure of business. He has many queer experiences and the climax will carry with it a surprise that will please and thrill. Mayo was never seen to better advantage than in this offering. The usual comedy and Weekly help to make the week-end bill most acceptable.

NEW LAKEVIEW PARK

When you return from Lakeview you invariably feel that your time has been well spent. The experience is always delightful. The car ride is a joyful, invigorating. The picnic ground is one of nature's best. It is happily endowed with all that man desires for rest, and it has charms official that enhance its attractiveness. Every afternoon and evening you may dance to music by Miner-Doyle's orchestra in the biggest hall of the kind in New England, and other attractions are always at your disposal.

Real Estate Transactions—Building Notes and Permits Issued

The Square Floor Plan of This House Is a Great Step-Saver for the Housewife

This large family house is one of the series of model home plans furnished by the Curtis Service Bureau of Clinton, Ia., experts in interior woodwork.

Today's houses must occupy less ground space and waste less heating effort. They must conserve more steps for the housewife who does her own work.

The house pictured here has the economical and convenient square floor plan. Its interior is in the spirit of the Colonial home of yesteryear. A forty-foot lot can be utilized in building this house. Any frontage will result in pleasant rooms, with the possible exception of the east. For that location, the porch should be reversed, to make the porch come out the south side, rather than on the north. A northwest corner in that case would be very satisfactory.

The house is developed in wide siding, a characteristic Colonial material. The designs of windows, doors, shutters and blinds are in conformity with the type presented. Not also the pleasing latticework and the slender porch posts.

An Ornamental Touch

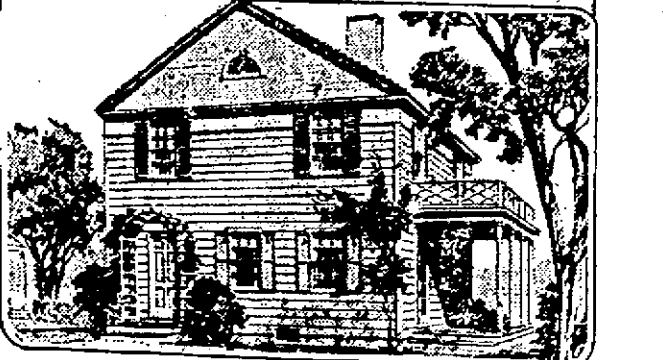

Someone has called the entrance "the smile on the face of the house." Particularly in reference to Colonial houses is this an apt description, for the formal entrance is usually the only ornamental touch about the simple building. In the house shown, the elaborateness of the entrance has been omitted in the interests of economy.

Vestibule, wrap closet and main hall with open stairs, are accessible from the front door. French doors admit to a living room 12 feet 2 inches by 18 feet 2 inches. An single French door also leads to the porch. With the windows in front, three sides are open to light and air. The fireplace occupies the center of the inside wall.

In the two rear corners of the dining room are two cupboards, a 12-light window between them. The cupboards are beautifully proportioned and exquisitely designed, with fluted pilasters, curved moldings and scroll headpieces. They have plenty of room for china, silver and linens. A second window on an adjacent side provides a free circulation of air.

Kitchen is Light

Perhaps the first thing noticed in the kitchen is the amount of excellent placing of the labor-saving equipment. There are range and cupboard, both close to the dining room.

Ironing board, worktable and sink are grouped in the coolest, lightest corner, where there is a cross current of air to make the room a good place to work at all times. There is a good-sized broom closet, and, best of all, a set of steps leading to the landing of the main stairs—a convenient, private way for the worker to get up and down stairs, and an easy access to the front door.

Upstairs, four bedrooms have corner locations. Each has windows on two sides, and each has a clothes closet. One of them has two. Another has a built-in case of trays that is more roomy than a chiffonier. It is enclosed behind an interior door of regular size and design. The linen closet in the hall, and the bathroom, are both conveniently located at the head of the stairs.

WELL, THE POOR FISH!

Girls don't spend all their time angling for hearts. Here's proof—three maids who vary the monotony by casting for the original poor fish. The funny victim on the line of Miss Mary Beverly Stevens, University of California (right) seems glad the strain and suspense is over. But he's not the first poor fish to get hooked by this pretty girl. Miss Bertha Mae Kirk (upper) shows to what length some girls will go to gain their desire; she's climbing a log over Hell Hole in Wyoming, in search of the rainbow trout. In the center Miss Helen E. Tway is daring the bully of a Snake River pool to strike.

WIND IN WILD FROLIC
AT SALISBURY BEACH

(Special to The Sun)
SALISBURY BEACH, July 30.—The intense heat of the past few days was effectually moderated by the severe storm which blew in here Thursday afternoon.

It was the most terrific wind experienced here for a long time. The lightning was terrific. One house was struck in Salisbury, the lightning traveling through on the telephone wires, and outside of splashing Officer Daley around several times and throwing him on a couch, did no other damage. The new garage of Mr. Lalley on the Causeway near Shaw square was blown flat. A pole in front of the Kelly hotel was snapped off and for a time light service on the beach was interrupted. In Broadway square, the wind played mad havoc with signs. The big sign of L. S. Willey was blown way down the square almost to the bandstand. Boxes and everything else were seemingly in great haste to reach the ocean front, while the wind played through the telephone wires and posts with all the thrilling sounds as described in the best fiction of a storm at sea. At pole 4, south end, a cottage was lifted off its foundation. At Black Rocks, the house of William Pierce was lifted from the posts, and turned around without, however, doing any serious damage. Mr. Pierce, who was in the house at the time, stated that he saw the storm coming. The wind seemed to travel in a well defined court. It came down across the Merrimack river, took the piazza off a cottage just across the way, then lifted his house, turned it around and deposited it back again. Two doves were lifted by the wind, carried up in the air, and brought down to the ground, smashing them to bits. The roof of another cottage was blown across several lots, taking the chimney off an adjacent cottage and landed it in the back of Gibney's garage, breaking all the windows. After the roof had been taken from the house, the wind reached down and pulled out chairs, pillows, bed clothing and other articles, distributing them in all directions.

On the ocean front at Broadway, two upper windows at either end of the Sea View dance hall were blown completely out. Flags on staffs, signs and everything not strongly secured, were quickly taken away by the wind. In the town of Salisbury, trees were blown down and the electric car service was held up for nearly an hour. The regular band concert at the beach as well as the fireworks were given without a hitch and a large crowd was in attendance.

The Baltic sea has an average of one shipwreck a day.

Fewer babies are born in June than in any other month.

PAGEANT OF PROGRESS

First Engine Run In N. Y. 90 Years Ago and Famous 999 Arrive at Chicago

CHICAGO, July 29.—The De Witt Clinton engine, with its historic coaches, the first locomotive operated in New York state 90 years ago, and the old New York Central engine No. 999, proud holder of a record of 112.5 miles an hour which has never been equaled in 21 years, arrived in Chicago today to be exhibited at the pageant of progress which opens tomorrow. The De Witt Clinton train arrived on flat cars from New York. Men and women attired in the costumes worn in 1831 boarded the coaches and the little engine then steamed through the city under its own power, looking just as it did when 90 years ago it ran between Albany and Schenectady.

The famous 999 followed the De Witt Clinton train. She was driven by Charles Hogan of Buffalo, who handled the throttle in her record-breaking trip on May 10, 1893.

McGRAW DENIES OFFER TO BUCK WEAVER

CINCINNATI, July 29.—John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Nationals, denied today that he made any proposal to Buck Weaver, one of the indicted White Sox on trial in Chicago, to play with the Giants in the event of his acquittal.

If he is acquitted and Judge Landis gives him a clean bill of honesty, why then the Giants may engage in the bidding for Weaver," he said.

"DOPE" STORIES AS CAMOUFLAGE

Asserted That Tales of Violations of Narcotic Law Are Propaganda

Claimed That Rumors Are Being Spread to Discredit Prohibition Legislation

Reported Federal Officials Have Unearthed Two Cases of Harrison Law Violations

The circulation of statements alleging the existence of a vice ring in Lowell which is engaged in extensive traffic in narcotic drugs was denounced by a police official today as an attempt on the part of persons friendly to the booze traffic to discredit the prohibition law by spreading abroad the impression that the shutting off of liquor was resulting in a large number of persons resorting to the use of "dope."

The alleged "dope" propaganda received an additional impetus this morning with the appearance of a story that officers of the local vice squad had three cases against alleged violators of the anti-narcotic laws which "would be presented to the federal grand jury next fall."

Local police officials were moved to mirth when the story was brought to their attention. "What have members of the Lowell force got to do with presenting cases to the federal grand jury?" asked one of the officials. "They have nothing to do with enforcing federal laws. That matter is in the hands of the federal authorities. There is a Massachusetts state law full of teeth that covers fully the sale and use of drugs. If the local officers, as alleged, had evidence of either illegal sale or use, it would be their duty to bring the matter at once to the attention of the local court. A further absurdity in the story is that although the officers have evidence of violation of the law they propose to permit the alleged guilty parties to remain at large until next September when the matter would be brought before the federal grand jury."

It is an unusual reflection on the intelligence of the officers that they have such sublime confidence in human nature that they would permit persons whom they believed to be guilty of a serious crime to remain at large for more than a month with a confident belief that they would be where they could be found when wanted.

Other parts of the story circulated today relate to the alleged sale of a can supposed to contain opium to a Chinese laundryman for a fancy price and the discovery that the can contained axle grease. The story is said to be hoary with age in the annals of journalism. The thing really happened in Boston about the time when the Ann first took the throne in China, which was some years ago.

The absurdity of other tales relating to the sale of cans of opium, it is pointed out, are equally absurd in that dope peddlers are not such unwary persons as to take chances with bulky cans when they can carry all of the active principle of a large receptacle full of crude opium hidden away in an envelope concealed in the sole of a shoe.

The only elements of truth in the stories that Lowell is overrun with "dope" peddlers and users seems to be found in the fact that federal authorities in making their regular inspections of the records of drug stores have found evidence of at least a technical violation of the Harrison law that may lead to arrests. It is understood that two persons may be involved in the cases.

The persons involved are said to be a physician and a druggist.

Other parts of the story circulated today relate to the alleged sale of a can supposed to contain opium to a Chinese laundryman for a fancy price and the discovery that the can contained axle grease. The story is said to be hoary with age in the annals of journalism. The thing really happened in Boston about the time when the Ann first took the throne in China, which was some years ago.

The absurdity of other tales relating to the sale of cans of opium, it is pointed out, are equally absurd in that dope peddlers are not such unwary persons as to take chances with bulky cans when they can carry all of the active principle of a large receptacle full of crude opium hidden away in an envelope concealed in the sole of a shoe.

The only elements of truth in the stories that Lowell is overrun with "dope" peddlers and users seems to be found in the fact that federal authorities in making their regular inspections of the records of drug stores have found evidence of at least a technical violation of the Harrison law that may lead to arrests. It is understood that two persons may be involved in the cases.

The persons involved are said to be a physician and a druggist.

SENSATION OVER KING'S DENIAL

Unprecedented Incident Given Greatest Prominence in Entire British Press

Political Circles Discuss Little Else Since Lloyd George Read King's Statement

LONDON, July 30.—The sensational and unprecedented incident of a British sovereign repudiating to parliament through the prime minister, statements attributed to him in a newspaper, interview, is given the greatest prominence in the entire British press this morning.

Political circles have been able to talk of little else since Prime Minister Lloyd George appeared in the house of commons yesterday and read a statement authorized by King George, in which the king declared that words attributed to him concerning the government's Irish policy in a reported interview in the United States by Lord Northcliffe, owner of the London Times, was "a complete fabrication."

The alleged interview quoted King George as saying to Premier Lloyd George just before his Majesty left England to open the Ulster parliament:

"Are you going to shoot all the people in Ireland?"

The premier is said to have replied: "No, Your Majesty."

"Well, then, you must come to some agreement with them," the king was quoted as saying. "This thing cannot go on. I cannot have my people killed in this manner."

(The foregoing conversation appeared in an interview published in New York city July 25 attributed to H. Wickham Stead, editor of the London Times who is traveling in America with Lord Northcliffe. It was given by Mr. Stead the day after his arrival from England, and subsequently appeared in English newspapers attributed directly to Lord Northcliffe. The latter yesterday sent a cablegram from Washington to Lord Stanbury, private secretary to King George, denying the reported interview.)

British newspapers display the entire affair at great length, and under large headlines this morning. The papers controlled by Lord Northcliffe contain brief editorials calling attention to the denial of both King George and Lord Northcliffe, but devote considerable space to comment upon the king's correct attitude in relation to his opening of the Belfast parliament.

After ridiculing the attribution of such "nonsense" to the king, the Morning Post says that Lord Northcliffe's denial was needed, "as the papers which were not entirely out of character to other authentic utterances from the same lips."

Referring to an article in the Daily Mail last Thursday, describing the activity of Lord Northcliffe in America, the Post continues:

"Northcliffe's mind is clearly overstrained. It is a case not for the politicians but for the doctors."

The Daily News suggests that the whole affair may prove to have been a hoax. It thinks that Lord Northcliffe deserves some sympathy, but adds that he should have chosen "some less irreverent country than America for his triumphal journey, as the papers which were not entirely out of character to other authentic utterances from the same lips."

The Chronicle says that Lord Northcliffe appears to have gone to America with the intention of doing what he could to make Premier Lloyd George unpopular there and thus "quell the pitch" for the British government in the coming disarmament negotiations in Washington.

Both Premier Lloyd George and Lord Northcliffe are censured by the Herald, which says:

"It is a diverting piece of low comedy, with two great demagogues as back chat comedians; the whole silly squabble is just a mud-slinging, but put on for two purposes: First, to gratify the vanity of these two worthies, and, secondly, to divert the people's minds from things that really matter."

NORTHCLIFFE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 30.—Lord Northcliffe was here today visiting the cablegram his two day visit in Washington. He will leave tonight for Vancouver, by way of Toronto.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our relatives and friends for the beautiful flowers and expressions of sympathy offered during our recent bereavement. To all we are grateful and their kindness will ever be remembered by us.

MRS. ANNA M. JANSON and Family.

MASS NOTICE

BRACEWELL—There will be an anniversary solemn high mass for Herbert F. Bracewell at the Immaculate Conception church Tuesday morning, Aug. 2 at 8 o'clock.

DEATHS

PICKLES—Fred Pickles, a former resident of Lowell, died last night at the home of Thomas Davies in Cambridge street, Kenwood, Dracut. He was 74 years, 6 months and 3 days. He leaves his wife, Sarah E. Pickles; a step son, Robert Barlow of Pawtucket, R. I. Deceased was a member of Waverly lodge, Sons of St. George.

BLOOD—Leonard Blood, a life long resident of Billerica, died yesterday at his home, aged 44 years. He was a veteran of the Civil war and a member of the Billerica G. A. R. He is survived by his wife, Ellen M. Blood.

BYRTT—Miss Katherine Byrtt, a well known resident of Belvidere, where she resided since coming to this city, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her brother, William Byrtt, 15 Marsh street. She is survived by a father and six sisters, Mrs. Cusick, Mrs. M. Hyman and Susan Byrtt in Ireland, Mrs. T. J. Kennedy of Lynn, Mrs. J. Carney and Jennie Byrtt in Lowell, and three brothers, John, Lynn, William of Lowell and Michael of Ireland.

PICKLES—Died in Dracut, Kenwood district, at the home of Thomas Davies in Camden street, Fred Pickles, aged 74 years. Funeral service will be held at the home on Camden street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Friends are respectfully invited. The funeral arrangements are in charge of Undertaker William H. Saunders.

LEBLANC—Berthe E. LeBlanc, only daughter of William E. and Mrs. D. LeBlanc, died this morning at the home of her parents, 25 Liberty street, at the age of 3 years 1 month and 25 days. Besides her parents she is survived by one brother, William T. LeBlanc.

BULMER—George Bulmer, a mail carrier in this city for a great many years, died Thursday night at Tewksbury. Deceased was born in this city 63 years ago and at one time lived in Merrill avenue. He resigned his position at the local postoffice in May, 1915, because of illness. He leaves a wife and three children.

These Three Young Men Have Passed Bar Examination and Will Practice Law

MAURICE BARLOFSKY

P. HAROLD READY

JOHN H. VALENTINE

Three young men well known locally, received word yesterday from the Massachusetts board of bar examiners that they had been admitted to the bar as attorneys at law. They are P. Harold Ready, 57 Fulton street; Maurice Barlofsky, 71 Dover street; and John H. Valentine of North Chelmsford. Each of the young men had been studying for a number of years in preparation for the bar examinations and the notification which they received yesterday comes as a fitting reward to their long period of study.

P. Harold Ready is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter T. Ready and has a large number of friends throughout the city. A remarkable feature of his success is that he has not yet completed his course in the Boston University Law school, having one more year to study before he receives his degree and yet he took the examination with hundreds of graduates and passed. The young attorney is a graduate of the Varnum school, class of 1914 and of the Lowell high school. At the Varnum school he was a star scholar and was elected president of his class. During his high school course he was placed on the honor roll.

John H. Valentine is one of the best and most favorably known young men in North Chelmsford. He is a graduate of the North Chelmsford high school where he carried away many honors both in his studies and in extra curricular affairs. For some time he has been postmaster at the North Chelmsford postoffice in addition to carrying on his work at Boston University law school where he matriculated three years ago. He received his degree of Bachelor of Laws in June of this year. His wide circle of friends both in this city and in Chelmsford and his acknowledged ability as a student of the law, are sure to make him successful in his life work.

FUNERAL NOTICES

BYRTT—The funeral of Miss Katherine Byrtt will take place Monday morning at 9 o'clock from the home of her brother, Mr. William Byrtt, 15 Marsh street. At 9 o'clock a mass of requiem will be sung at the Immaculate Conception church. Burial will be in the family lot in St. Patrick's cemetery. Motor cortege. The funeral will be under the direction of Undertakers James F. O'Donnell & Sons.

WILL DO MISSIONARY WORK IN AFRICA

Rev. Sister St. Francis, formerly Miss Melina Caron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Caron of 516 Moody street, who is now at the convent of the Missionary Sisters of Africa, at Levis, Que., will sail from New York for Algeria, Africa, Aug. 15. Her mother and sister, Miss Alma Caron, a trained nurse employed by the board of health of Gardner, who is now on a furlough in this city, will leave here next Wednesday.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Philippe Deschamps and Miss Elizabeth Lantagne were married this morning at a private nuptial mass celebrated in the chapel of St. Joseph's church at 7 o'clock, the officiating clergyman being Very Rev. E. J. Turcotte, O.M.I. The bride wore a blueorgette gown with hat to match and carried bridal roses. She was attended by her brother, Mr. George Lantagne, while the groom's witness was his father, Mr. Joseph Deschamps of Salem. At the close of the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to immediate relatives at the home of the bride, 788 Merrimack street, and later the happy couple left on a month's automobile trip through Canada. Upon their return they will make their home in this city. Last Thursday evening, the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower at her home, the affair being attended by about 50 friends. The young woman was presented numerous gifts and showered with best wishes. In the course of the evening, entertainment numbers were given and luncheon was served. Last Saturday, the groom was remembered by his friends who called at his home in Mt. Washington street, and presented him a purse of gold.

CARD OF THANKS

In heartfelt gratitude for the many acts of kindness and thoughtfulness which enabled me to bear with renewed strength the grief caused by my recent bereavement, I take this means of extending my sincere appreciation to all those who assisted by words of consolation, by spiritual and floral offerings and otherwise to lighten the burden of that grief, and I assure them that their kindness and sympathy will ever be remembered.

MRS. THOMAS F. HOBAN.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many relatives and friends and neighbors, for their kindness, moral and spiritual offerings which helped to lighten our burden during our recent bereavement in the death of our dear sister and aunt. We will always remember them.

REV. SISTER ST. FRANCOISE

nesday to pay her a visit before she sails.

Rev. Sister St. Francoise was born in this city 25 years ago. She received her early education at St. Joseph's convent, Moody street, and later secured employment in the folding department of the Lawrence Mfg. Co., where she worked up to last February. In the early part of March she went to Montreal, Que., and visited several convents, for at that time she had made up her mind to enter an order. It seems, however, that none of the Montreal orders appealed to her. After leaving of the Missionary Sisters of Africa, she visited the convent at Levis, Que., and immediately decided to enter that order.

VACATION TRAVEL LIGHT THIS YEAR

"Either Lowell people have no money or they are saying it in anticipation of a hard winter," said Frank W. Brown, general agent of Boston & Maine railroad this morning when asked relative to vacation travel. He said it is much heavier than it has been in several years. It is usually the rule that the cars of the Boston & Maine are taxed to capacity carrying vacationers to seashore and mountains at this time of the year but for some reason there is a heavy falling off of travel this year. Mr. Brown said that undoubtedly the cause of the depression has something to do with the decrease in travel. He did not mention anything about high fares.

THE YOUNG MEN

The young men well known in this city and her many friends will wish her success and happiness in her new field of labor. Besides her parents she has a sister and a brother living in this city, Miss Grace Caron and Laurence Caron. She has two other sisters, Miss Alma Caron of Gardner and Mrs. Thomas Caron of Notre Dame du Lac, Que.

chamber of commerce initiative petition on the following day.

At a recent meeting of the municipal council the mayor made known his opposition to the proposed contract method of doing street work here, but he feels that he cannot go out campaigning either for or against the proposed measure.

The invitation received by His Honor from James O'Sullivan, chairman of the committee, and the mayor's reply forwarded to Mr. O'Sullivan today are as follows:

Lowell, Mass., July 26, 1921.

Hon. Perry D. Thompson, Mayor, Lowell, Mass.

The Lowell Citizens' committee in opposition to contract labor has arranged a mass meeting at Associate hall, Monday night, August 1. The hall will be packed with public spirited citizens who are opposed to the system of contract labor because of its unfairness to Lowell citizens, and for other reasons that are important to the city.

We have been advised that you are against contract labor, and we therefore, invite you to speak at this important meeting against this issue. We will consider it a great favor if you will accept this invitation.

Very truly yours,

JAMES O'SULLIVAN, Chairman.

Lowell Citizens' Committee in opposition to contract labor, Associate Building, Lowell, Mass.

The Mayor's Reply

The mayor's reply was as follows:

Mr. James O'Sullivan, Chairman, Lowell Citizens' Committee, Lowell, Mass.

Dear Mr. O'Sullivan: Allow me to acknowledge your letter of invitation to address a mass meeting in Associate hall on Monday evening, Aug. 1.

To my mind it would seem very inappropriate for me, as mayor, to attempt by public expression on the platform to influence my fellow-citizens upon this or any other public issue referred to them for decision under the initiative section of our charter.

I have endeavored to comply with the requirements of my office upon its first reference to the municipal council. My attitude, I believe, is well known, through my official conduct as a member of the municipal council.

While I commend most heartily the public-spirited interest shown by your organization in permitting a public discussion of such an important issue, I feel that my position as mayor pre-

Women Faint in Bank Run

Thomas C. Evans of the Boston police. Deputy Evans said:

"Some malicious secret force is at work spreading propaganda among the foreign element and getting them to withdraw their savings, thus causing a run on the bank."

Among the crowd outside the bank persons are dropping out of line every minute, convinced that their savings are safe.

A squad of police together with a mounted officer and several traffic officers kept the streets outside the bank open this morning.

Officials of the bank said they were not disturbed by the prospect of a run as there was $2,000,000 in cash in the vaults and $2,000,000 in securities which could be converted into cash within 24 hours.

Five Women Fainted

Five women fainted and others became hysterical when police officers dashed into the crowd outside the bank to stop their rush into the building.

The trouble started when a score of persons rushed the police guard at the bank door and broke through. Mounted officers turned their horses onto the sidewalk and the crowd broke.

After this incident officers were stationed at both ends of School street, and at alleyways leading into it with orders to keep out all persons having no special business in that neighborhood. Plans were also made to divert trucks and other heavy traffic from School street.

Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen issued this statement during the morning:

"I could only make clear to the people of Boston in what strong condition the Boston Five Cents Savings bank is, those who have withdrawn their money would be ashamed of themselves. A bank with $25,000,000 in quick assets that can be converted into cash almost immediately does not have to worry."

WALTER E. GUYETTE Auctioneer

Office, 53 Central St., Lowell, Mass. Telephone 2415.

The owner of this full two and one-half story two-tenement house and about 4500 square feet of land, more or less, situated at Nos. 207-209 Ludlum street, Centralville, has decided to make sale and therefore has instructed the auctioneer to sell at unrestricted public sale to the highest bona fide bidder upon the premises on next Saturday, the sixth day of August, 1921, at 4 o'clock p. m.

This house is of the full two and one-half story type, of two tenements, with separate entrances, has five rooms and bathroom to each tenement. Each tenement is supplied with open plumbing, china closets, gas, has sewer and water connections.

There are large verandas, the cellars are divided. The house is high studded, has a plentiful supply of closet room and is extra well constructed, is in very good order both inside and out, is of pleasing design and each tenement having all of its rooms on the one floor makes it convenient to the tenant.

The lot is of attractive area, with splendid frontage on Ludlum street and gives ample room for a garage and garden use.

The upper tenant has occupied the one tenement for a considerable period and pays as a rental the sum of $125 per year, which is an extremely low rental for tenements of this character. The lower flat is at occupancy. Already offers have been made ranging in price from $200 to $250 by prospective tenants for this apartment. It therefore assures an owner a steady and continuous rental that would pay heavy return on the amount invested.

To the many, many home seekers the opportunity is herein presented to buy at open competition an attractive, well situated home and investment property.

Its location, within very close proximity to many of Lowell's largest manufacturing industries, within one minute actual walking distance of the Hovey Square line of electric and within three minutes' actual walking distance of the Lakeview avenue line and within seven minutes' actual walking distance of the Bridge street line adds greatly to its value either as a home property or from the investor's standpoint.

Terms: $100 must be paid to the auctioneer as soon as the property is struck off. Other terms made known at the sale.

By order of WALTER E. GUYETTE.

RIGA, July 30.—(By the Associated Press)—The offer of Herbert Hoover to aid Russia in relieving suffering due to famine on condition that all Americans now held prisoners in Russia be released, has been accepted by the Russian authorities, who suggest immediate negotiations in order to realize speedy assistance, according to a despatch from the Rosta News Agency of Moscow, received here today.

The text of the reply, made in the name of Leo Kamenoff, head of the non-partisan non-political famine relief committee is as follows:

"The Russian government upon learning of the proposals made her by Herbert Hoover, in the name of the American Relief association, finds them quite acceptable, including the question of the release of American citizens."

"The Russian government considers it necessary to fix as soon as possible the exact conditions on which the immediate relations are to begin."

"It is humane intentions guarantee the feeding, medical aid and clothing of the million children and invalids. For this purpose the Russian government considers it useful that Director Brown or any other person authorized for the negotiations should immediately come to Moscow, Riga or Reval."

"Barnstorming Tour"

CHICAGO, July 30.—Plans for a "barnstorming tour" by former White Sox players charged with conspiring to throw the 1919 world's series were being made today as Edward Prindle addressed the jury in the prosecution's final argument in the baseball trial.

The players elected Eddie Cicotte captain of the team and began work on an itinerary which would include most of the larger cities of the country.

Weaver was the only player on trial who declined to consider the tour. Weaver has refused to play ball with anyone since his indictment. The players who expect to make the trip are Cicotte, Jackson, Williams, Gandil, Rishberg and Felsch.

Prindle's statement today dealt largely with the technicalities of the law on conspiracy.

CHARGE POLICE "FRAMED" THEM

That Officers Showed Animus Against Them

Story Told of Early Morning
Raid on Camp on Shore of Silver Lake

Accused Men and Women

Discharged by Court After Hearing of Case

Charges that the police had made attempts to "frame" them were made by defendants in two cases heard before Judge Enright in the police court this morning. In one of the cases the defendant, a married woman who was discharged by the judge after he had listened to the evidence, charged that an officer had subjected her to an insult and that she had been taken in a "back room" in the police station and, in an effort to implicate her, was told that a fellow prisoner had made a confession in which she was accused of a crime, and that no such confession had been made.

The court room was crowded to the limit during the hearing of the cases. At one point Judge Enright sternly ordered the court officers to "tell those people standing near the door to get out if they can't find seats."

The most interesting developments of the morning came during the trial of a case which was the outgrowth of a raid made by the police shortly after midnight last Tuesday morning on an alleged "vice den" on the shores of Silver Lake in Tewksbury.

Five prisoners were arraigned before the judge when the cases were called. In the forefront was Mrs. Winifred McGovern, of Medford, a tall, slight young woman of not unattractive appearance. The other defendants were Somerville young men named Andrew Young, Ralph Jones, Walter Bacon and Joseph Shepard. All five were taken into custody during the raid and were charged with improper conduct.

Hadward Testifies

James McGovern of Medford, husband of Winifred McGovern, said that his wife told him that she was going to the Silver Lake camp with her baby, for a vacation, and that he gave his consent for her to make the trip as she assured him that there were to be older women and no men there. He said that after his wife left he became suspicious and started out to locate the "Silver Lake" camp. He said that he searched for it unsuccessfully for a long time and while hunting for it was obliged to sleep one night in the woods. Finally a small boy showed him the place. He said he found his wife and two other girls in the camp and his baby there sick and crying. He decided to take the baby home with him after his wife had declined to accompany him. He said that the next day his wife turned up in Medford and that she told him she "would rather take a vacation in jail than live with him."

Promised to "Do Right"

Later the witness said his wife promised to come back to him and "do

Women Jurors Are Not Vamp
Proof, Says New York Girl Attorney

MISS ELIZABETH BLUME, NEW YORK ATTORNEY, AND (INSET) HARRY PAYER, ATTORNEY OF CLEVELAND

What are the chances for a fair and impartial trial when the jury is more than half women and the opposing attorneys are of opposite sexes and good looking? "No chance," says Miss Elizabeth Blume, who has an established reputation as an attorney in New York. "Young women are too easily swayed by the smiles and compliments of a handsome man. There is danger, too, that if the majority of the panel are men, a woman may be too timid to fearlessly express her opinion. I never want a mixed jury if I can help it. I prefer either 12 men or 12 women who would meet the requirements of the men."

CO-OPERATIVE BANK
IN ITS NEW HOME

The Middlesex Co-operative bank welcomed its friends today to its new home in the Central block, 35 Central street. It is a new home in all its outward appearance; new decorations, new furniture, and newness everywhere although it is in the building from which the bank was driven by the city some time ago. There is an air of "homeliness" about the new quarters combined with an atmosphere of up-to-the-minute business. A feature of the big

BUSINESS DEPRESSION HAS NOT HIT BANKS
The savings banks of Lowell are in a very satisfactory condition despite the business depression, according to a statement made by a leading bank official today. On the last day of last October the banks had approximately $1,000,000 on deposit. During the period of stacking up in industry deposits have continued to flow into the banks in surprising volume, when conditions are considered, and withdrawals have been small. It is stated, compared with what might have been anticipated. It is said that it is probable that at the close of the fiscal year Oct. 31, the annual statements to the bank commissioner will show substantial increases in deposits over the figures for last year.

TUFTS BROKE DOWN ON
WITNESS STAND

BOSTON, July 30.—Dist. Atty. Nathan A. Tufts wept over the memory of his father in the midst of a pitiless examination before the supreme court yesterday, when he was called upon to account for the $25,000 bank deposits made by him near the time of the Mishawum Manor settlement in 1917. He had been asked by Atty. Gen. J. Weston Allen to state the circumstances under which his father had given him three cash presents. "Almost the last words my father said to me," he commenced, but paused, sobbing with emotion. He struggled to regain mastery over himself, murmuring half coherently the dying injunction of his parent: "My boy, this is the last I have. Look out for your mother." With another agitated gasp the witness concluded huskily: "He kissed me goodbye."

Weakness Only Momentary
His weakness was only momentary, for when Mr. Allen considerably asked if he would like to suspend, Mr. Tufts replied firmly, "No, sir." Whereupon the attorney general probed again into the witness' intimate recollections. The gift from the elder Tufts, the district attorney explained, came in installments of $500, $1500 and $2025, which the parent produced in bills from a bureau drawer. "This second gift—was that from the same bureau drawer?" drawled Allen. "I think so. It may have taken it from under his pillow. But I think it was from the same bureau drawer."

Sold House for $20,000
"Did you know how long he had had that money?" "In 1922, when I was a lad of 13 or 14, he received some $20,000 from the city of Fitchburg for the sale of our house and rather large lot of land to be used for the erection of a school-house."

Names on Bridge Tablet
Here are names of city officials engraved in an iron shield and attached to the framework of the Moody street bridge. We venture to say that it would be rather difficult to find that shield at the present time and if found it would hardly be legible:

Lowell Lawyer Testifies
Three superior court judges contributed to the building of the Tufts defense with testimony which gave him a clean bill of health so far as their official observation was concerned. The first, Chief Justice Alkon, told of Tufts' correspondence with him seeking to relieve the crowded condition of the Middlesex county docket.

Convict Killed in Prison Riot
MALESTER, Okla., July 29.—One convict was killed, a building wrecked and several guards were slightly injured in a riot which broke out in the shift factory at the state penitentiary yesterday afternoon. Jack Whitehead, his term, was killed when he attempted to rush guards.

Will Preach at All Souls Church
The Rev. Doremus Scudder of Boston, who is to preach at the last of the special summer services at All Souls church tomorrow morning, is one of the best known men of the Congregational ministry and has had an unusually varied experience, part of it as a missionary, and again as a pastor in Japan and later as a Red Cross official in China.

Will Seize Land for Playgrounds
The park department voted at a special meeting last evening to give notice to owners of a tract of land in the Highlands, bounded by B. Parker and Stevens street, that the land is to be seized by the city for playground purposes. The commission instructed Supt. John W. Kernan to serve the notices and to give the owners of the land a public hearing on Aug. 24, if they wished it.

Stampeders Rush To New Oil Fields
ANCHORAGE, Alaska, July 30.—Reported discovery of what is said to be a high grade of seepage oil near Anchorage, with the indication that the field extends for 50 miles north along the government railroad has sent a crowd of stampeders into the district to stake claims. According to an apparently authentic report here, an 80 foot quartz vein assaying in the neighborhood of $500 to the ton, has been uncovered in the northern part of the California Creek district, north of Anchorage.

Missing Girl in Muzzle Of Gun
PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., July 30.—Louise O'Brien, aged 14, missing from her home all night was found at daybreak, asleep inside the muzzle of a 14-inch gun of the shore batteries at Fort Worden. Other guns at the fort had been fired just before the girl was discovered. According to military authorities, she had gone for a horseback ride the previous afternoon. Far from home, while she was dismounted, the horse ran away and she, losing her way and weary of wandering in the darkness, took refuge in the long black object that suddenly loomed in her path. Officers at the fort said it was only by chance that this gun was not fired.

Boston Fishing Schooner Sunk
SHELburne, N. S., July 30.—The Boston schooner Genesta was sunk yesterday while fishing on Brown bank, 70 miles from this port, by the three masted Lunenburg schooner Mary G. Duff. The Genesta's crew of 20 arrived here on the Mary G. Duff today. Captain Dobson of the Genesta said that the collision occurred in thick weather. The schooner had 5000 pounds of fish on board when she foundered.

Orders Release of Irish Prisoners
DUBLIN, July 30.—The crown attorney announced today that the government had decided to release John J. Egan and Patrick Higgins pending a hearing on appeal against the habeas corpus and contempt of court orders issued in connection with their cases. This overruling by the government of the military, in the decision to release Egan and Higgins, is considered here as an indication of a fixed intention on the government's part to encourage the spread of the peace atmosphere. Higgins was under sentence of death and Egan was accused of having taken part in an ambush.

Stabs Wife, Shoots Her Mother and Self
NEW BEDFORD, July 30.—Jacinto Coriera, aged 46, living at 367 Shaw street, at 5:30 this morning terminated a family quarrel over division of money received in a property sale by shooting his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Viera, twice, once in the neck and once in the side, slashing his wife, Mrs. Marie Coriera, aged 23 on the arms and then shot himself in the breast. The two women will recover, but Coriera is dying. All three are at St. Luke's hospital. Coriera is the father of eight children, seven by a former wife, and one by his present spouse.

Mr. Property Owner, Mr. Home Owner, Mr. Rent Payer—
Do you wonder your yearly expenses mount higher and higher? Look over the above tables. Read how the Street Department Expenses have helped to increase the Tax Rate for the past nine years.

If your home had a valuation of $4000 in 1913 you paid a tax of $77.60; in 1921 you will have to pay a tax of probably $150.00, for the tax rate has been increased $10.50 per thousand and your valuation has been raised approximately 25 per cent.

If you are a RENT PAYER keep in mind that your landlord has increased your rent, in order that he, in turn, can pay the City the increased taxes on his property.

One reason for your increased taxes and rents is that IN 1920 PERMANENT PAVING LAID BY THE STREET DEPARTMENT COST $13.34 SQ. YD. compared with 1921 PERMANENT PAVING LAID BY CONTRACT IN BOSTON AT COST OF $3.06 SQ. YD.

consisted of a somersault over the tape at a Barnum & Bailey. It was a pretty way but not a jump and Mr. Champagne retired early as he could not jump according to rule. Frank Looney of this city won a special 350 yard race against a Charlestown man named Holm.

Flakerty Was Ill
From the Sun:
"The local sports who remained out until early morning for returns from the Flakerty-Gans fight were much disappointed to hear the news that owing to illness Martin was unable to go in, giving Gans the $200 forfeit."

Paul Butler Won
Says the old Sun:
"UTICA, N. Y., July 29.—The first of the international half-rater races on the St. Lawrence river under the auspices of the Ogdensburg Yacht club was held today. At the start the river was like a sheet of glass but the breeze freshened up. The course was four times around a triangle with one mile legs. The yachts finished in this order: Sothus, Vesper, Mischief, Peggy, Anita, Missile. The Gold Bug was distanced. The Southerners fouled its bugs, was disqualified and the race was given to Paul Butler's Vesper."

Thomas F. Hoban
In the old Sun I find a base ball item telling of victories won by the "Hoban Pets." The victories of the amateur ball team were of little importance but at this time the item recalls the late Thomas F. Hoban for whom the team was named. Tom was the soul of gentility and good nature. He equipped the "Hoban Pets" and took a deep interest in their playing. I doubt whether there was a single man or woman in Lowell who was personally acquainted with Mr. Hoban who did not sincerely grieve on hearing of his death. He had been ill for a considerable time and from a disease that kept creeping on him until as might be said, it killed him by inches. But Mr. Hoban in all his sufferings, even after he had lost both limbs, was light hearted and devoted to his friends. It seemed as if his heart was filled with kindness and never knew the searing emotion of hatred. When in 1922 and '23, he served in the common council, he made life-long friends without, however, making a single enemy, because he always took the honorable course and there, as in the legislature some years later, no man was ever heard to utter a word of reproach against Tom Hoban. He helped many a friend who had no claim on his generosity and he helped many a worthy charity and, I imagine, he gave proof of this same spirit in his last will and testament.

Quits Commission to Practice Law
WASHINGTON, July 30.—Edgar E. Clark, chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission, who recently submitted his resignation to President Harding, will enter a partnership for the practice in Washington of commercial law, according to an announcement today.

Mr. Clark, who has been a member of the commission since 1906, and chairman for the last three years, resigned. It was stated today, in order to relieve himself of the strain connected with his office and also to make more substantial provision for his family. It was emphasized today at the commission offices that there had been no disagreement between the chairman and the administration.

President Harding has appointed Frederick I. Cox, of East Orange, N. J., with business interests in New York, to succeed to Mr. Clark's place on the commission.

INSTITUTE OF POLITICS
BEGINS REAL WORK

WILLIAMSTOWN, July 30.—The Institute of Politics, which was opened at Williams college for a four weeks' session yesterday with Chief Justice William Howard Taft as its chairman, settled down to real work today. The members interested in the historical and geographical changes caused by the world war met for their round table conference under the leadership of Charles W. Haskins, dean of the graduate school at Harvard, and Colonel Lawrence Martin of Washington. This conference will meet regularly during the session of the institute and will hear a discussion by qualified experts of "The new frontiers in western Europe and the Near East." Its members include many college professors several well-known publicists. Meanwhile organization of the seven other round tables, which will hold their first sessions next week was advanced. The first of the series of public lectures which will be one of the features of the institute's work, will be given this evening by Viscount James Bryce, former British ambassador to the United States, who will speak on "International Relations of the world states, including a discussion of the causes of wars and the means of averting them."

HAIRDRESSING PARLORS

Miss Florence Whelan, whose advertisement appears on another page, has one of the most attractive hairdressing parlors in the city, equipped with the latest appliances to give proper treatment and care to the hair. She is conveniently located in the square over Green's drug store and has her shop open from 9 in the morning until 8 at night so as to enable her clients to have appointments at their own convenience.

of soldiers' graves is now filled by Frank B. Flanders of 28 Leverett street. Mr. Flanders has the expenditure of $350, appropriated by the city this year for carrying on his work of searching out soldiers' graves and taking steps for having them properly marked with headstones and Grand Army markers set in cement bases. It is understood that he would be a candidate for appointment if the request contained in the petitions now in circulation were granted. It is understood that Mr. Flanders would be content with a nominal salary of $1000 a year and a small allowance for carrying on the work of the office.

Member of Grand Army
Mr. Flanders is a member of Post 120 of the Grand Army. He served

two years and nine months in the army during the Civil war. He was wounded in the fighting at Fredericksburg and, after recovering from the effects of his disability, went back into the fighting forces again and was seriously wounded in front of Petersburg. He was discharged from service on account of his injury and has been partially lame ever since. Mr. Flanders is 77 years old, and his friends say that in a few years, if he were made a regular employee of the city and devoted all of his time to the work, he would be able to locate all the unknown graves of soldiers, have them suitably marked, and put a complete record of the last resting places in shape for preservation. It is pointed out that the total expense to the city for the performance of the work would be small, and that the office could be allowed to lapse with the completion of the work.

The First Movement
The first movement toward having the graves of soldiers marked and their location made a matter of permanent record was started by the Grand Army shortly after the close of the war. In 1912, 1913 and 1914 interest in the matter was again revived as the national commander of the Grand Army in annual messages called attention to the importance of the subject. Last spring the American Legion gave renewed impetus to the movement by giving approval to the project to have suitable provision made for carrying out the wishes of the old soldiers.

Appointed by O'Donnell
Mr. Flanders was appointed as agent for the care of soldiers' graves by Mayor O'Donnell in 1916. Since that time he has spent a considerable portion of his time in ferreting out the location of unknown graves. To a friend Mrs. Flanders recently said that when her husband succeeded in locating the unknown grave of a comrade he appeared to be as happy as though he had found a gold mine.

Grand Army Markers
In addition to locating unknown graves of soldiers and securing government headstones for them and having them placed, Mr. Flanders has had a large number of the Grand Army markers on graves painted and set in cement bases to insure their perpetuation. He has also succeeded in having some of the soldiers' graves in the Edson cemetery placed under perpetual care. For some of the work he has had done Mr. Flanders has paid out of his own pocket. This year Mr. Flanders has also located in the Potter's field in the same cemetery three unmarked graves of soldiers who died in camp in this city. One of the soldiers was from Maine and the other two from New Hampshire. Mr. Flanders says that he hopes he will find the unmarked grave of a comrade named McCarthy, who served in his own regiment and whom he knew well, when he has an opportunity to search in St. Patrick's cemetery.

Youthful President of the Ford Company Tells Sun His Plans

Will Not Be Satisfied Until the Ford Plant is Self-Sufficient

BY EDWARD THORRY
DETROIT, Mich., July 30.—"Do it yourself—don't depend on others."

That is the business creed of Edsel Ford, son of Henry Ford and the world's youngest man-with-the-biggest job.

EDSEL FORD, WHO HAS JUST GIVEN HIS FIRST INTIMATE INTERVIEW ON HIS JOB TO THE SUN.

Motor company. You have read much about Henry, the builder, but little about Edsel—the man at the wheel.

"Edsel is the boss," Henry Ford had told me while he was camping with President Harding, Thomas Edison and H. S. Firestone. "No, I'm not even chairman of the company. I haven't got a job at all."

Resembles Father

Edsel is a quiet, serious-faced, serious-voiced young man. He is only 23. He looks like his father, with the same sharply chiseled face, quite thin, with dark complexion, smooth face, brown eyes and hair brushed straight back. He walks with a slight stoop and long strides like his father.

"Father put me through the mill," Edsel told me. "Now I'm at the wheel. I have been president two and a half years. It isn't an easy job."

"I realize my responsibilities—now, and in the future. The hardest part is finished. It is easier to run something that has been cranked and started and is running in high gear."

"The Ford interests have always been a one-man proposition. And always will be."

That's why father stepped out and let me steer. I'm playing his game—doing things myself when I want them done right.

Complete Industry

"I will not be satisfied until our plant is self-sufficient. We make nearly everything that goes into our cars and tractors. We will produce everything ourselves—except tires. We have good friends who make tires."

"Buying the Detroit, Toledo & Iron-ore railroad was a step in that direction. The railroad was an adventure—and it's beginning to be a profitable adventure."

"To get maximum efficiency we will make our own steel. We have our own mines and blast furnaces and coal mines. And we are going into cotton."

To Cut Car Prices

Edsel sees an even lower priced car in the future. I asked him when reductions might come.

"Not now," he said. "But just wait a few years. We haven't got automobile-building down to the science we hope to have it. The bottom has not been hit yet."

Economy in production is the big thing. That means doing everything yourself. That's what we're doing. "So far we have made 5,200,000 cars! And right now production is ahead of all records. I'm proud of that—as president of the company."

AUTO INSURANCE RATES

Automobile Makers Want Reduction — Moral Hazard Should be Recognized

NEW YORK, July 30.—Lower insurance rates on a better basis are sought by the national automobile chamber of commerce in severing relations with the underwriters laboratories which would group cars according to mechanical construction.

Over-valuation and ignoring the character of the policy holder are the two weakest points in the insurance methods today, in the opinion of the automobile makers.

Most of the new cars carrying insurance are valued at more than their market price if the owner had to sell them. Consequently the temptation to destroy the car is strong for the underwriters. Many instances are on record of cars being driven into a river in order that theft insurance might be collected. The same danger applies for fire insurance.

Though faced with this situation, no recognition is made of the moral hazard. No inquiry is made concerning a man's character before writing his policy, so that the dangers of valuation are not stopped at this point.

More important than the crime element is the carelessness which over-valuation encourages in the average motorist. If his automobile is over-valued theft or accident may prove a blessing.

The activities of the underwriters laboratories are regarded as too detailed. The inspection result in classifications which are illogical. Parts makers which do not submit to the underwriters laboratories tests do not get rated, and a car may accordingly be unfairly listed because not all of its parts are supervised.

Few of the accidents today are due to faulty construction. The automobile makers feel that little is gained by the underwriters laboratories tests as the cause of the high rates lies in factors not related to mechanical production.

Insurance companies are working on these suggestions and a readjustment in policies and rates is hoped for in the near future.

body is over the hysteria of abnormal prosperity. We all have our hearts in our work.

"We are on a sounder basis now. Everybody is. That's why we weathered what many people thought was a storm. We got along without Wall Street's money—and if Wall Street thinks we put one over on them I'm glad of it."

Building Speed Boat

"The motor car isn't the only thing that keeps me busy. There is the tractor. And the gasoline trolley."

"And a new speed boat we are building. We are using duraluminum, the German metal. In the speed boat, which will have 1000 horsepower, it will be 32 feet long and go 60 miles an hour."

"We are experimenting a lot with duraluminum now that we can make it in this country under an arrangement with the alien property custodian. It is lighter, and it has the good qualities of steel and iron, though aluminum is the basis. Eventually it may solve motor car problems."

"Father hasn't given up the gasoline trolley car. It has been dormant some time, but recently we ran one down the D. T. & I. to Springfield. We believe it will solve many traction problems."

This ruling is to be strictly enforced by various means, one of which is the use of a small machine that will be used on the roads at night to detect the candle power of the bulbs used, and if the motorists are found with a greater or lesser power than the one required they will be arrested.

TAKES THE KICK OUT OF CRANK

A mechanic of Bordeaux, France, has patented a device, for use especially on trucks, which is designed to make cranking every bit as easy and safe as "self-starting."

The device fits over the end of the crank shaft, in front of the radiator. By means of three gears and an eccentric, the crank shaft is separated from the crank in such a way that, when the motor bucks, the handle is automatically disconnected from the shaft while the force of the kick is lost among the gears.

It is necessary to re-connect the handle by pressure on a hand-spring at the top of the device. The crank is then in position for a second trial.

OXFORD-CAMBRIDGE ATHLETES PLEASED

NEW YORK, July 30.—Members of the Oxford-Cambridge track team that tied Cornell-Princeton in the international meet at Travers Island on Thursday, will spend several weeks in this country before returning home.

The English athletes made friends of their various rivals in the meet and have been taken to their homes for a visit. Captain Rudd and four or five others are in the home of Princeton men; some have gone with Cornell athletes and still others to Boston.

Rudd today spoke in high praise of the Cornell-Princeton men who opposed them at Travers Island. "They were fine," he exclaimed. "and we are glad that the meet came out a tie. The attitude of the spectators at the meet was fine, too, and we want everybody to know we are pleased."

SPONGE ALWAYS WET

Force a piece of pipe into a sponge. bind the sponge on, attach the pipe to a hose and you will have a water-soaked sponge all the time you clean your automobile. This does not mar the car's finish.

HUPMOBILE BOOSTERS

Tom Rafter, the local Hupmobile agent, says that one of the greatest factors in selling the Hupmobile to a new owner is the reputation given the Hupmobile by owners of them. In many cases a prospective buyer will come to the salesroom and when asked why he thought of the Hupmobile, usually replies that after inquiring among auto owning friends he found everyone boosting the Hupmobile for its mechanical excellence, appearance and small cost of upkeep. Another important feature is the number of women drivers that are daily seen driving about in Hupmobiles. A great number of women have found in the Hupmobile the car that answers to the slightest pressure applied to the brake and gears, giving them confidence when driving in traffic.

Hupmobile

What is it we all want in our motor car, and try to get when we buy? First of all is reliability. In the Hupmobile you are downright sure of reliability that is almost amazing. It keeps on going without frequent tuning and tinkering. Next, undoubtedly, a low running cost and upkeep cost. The Hupmobile reputation for economy of tires, gasoline and oil is known everywhere. Its record stands alone when it comes to low repair costs

Then long life and a high re-sale price. It is next to impossible to kill the Hupmobile, and any dealer will tell you how high it stands in the used car market.

In the Hupmobile you get exactly what you most want in your car, and at a price—$1485—that is attractively low.

Fight Typhoid Fever In Woonsocket

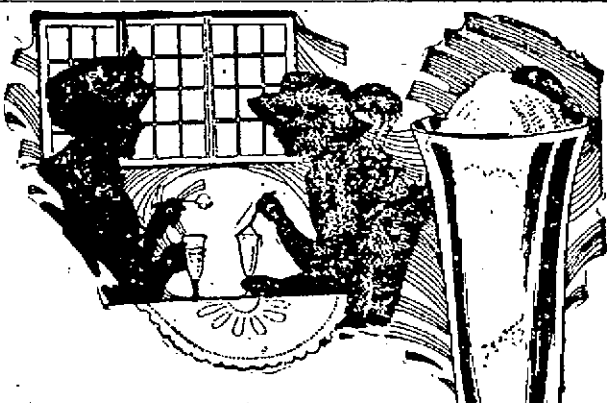

WOONSOCKET, R. I., July 30.—State and city health authorities are conferring here today on the best measures to put an end to an epidemic of typhoid fever which has developed in this city during the past week. Early reports today showed 18 cases in this city including seven patients seriously ill with the disease at the Woonsocket hospital. The authorities believe they have located the source of the disease in milk and have taken action which has already barred one dealer from selling any more milk. No deaths have been reported. The local authorities admit that the situation is serious. The first case was reported last Sunday and they have been on the increase since that time. Three new cases were reported early today. The patients in the hospital are said to be in the height of the disease and "very ill."

By ALICE ROBE.
NEW YORK, July 28.—More American dollars will go to bolster the tottering cause of royalty as a result of two approaching international marriages.
During the past 35 years it is estimated that fortunes totaling more than $150,000,000 have gone to various titled foreigners, broke and near-broke, through marriage with the daughters of American millionaires.
These are the latest international marriages to be announced:
William B. Leeds, son of Princess Anastasia of Greece, who was the widow of William B. Leeds of New York, is to marry Princess Xenia, niece of King Constantine of Greece and daughter of Grand Duchess Marie. Countess Emicelle Frankenstein, daughter of Count Henri de Frankenstein of Rome, is to wed Don Enrico Barberini, prince of Palestrina. This marriage will bring the grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B.

Brewster of New York into another important princely house, for the Barberinis go back in Roman history to the middle ages.
Just as Princess Anastasia's marriage will bring millions into the Greek royalist cause, so will the marriage of the Princess Xenia and Leeds insure the Greek throne against poverty for at least another generation.
Italy, numerically, has had more of its royalty wedded to American heiresses than any other country. But the matches where the biggest fortunes were obtained were by members of the nobility of other countries.
The Vanderbilt family has paid more than $20,000,000 for husbands of the nobility. The marriage of Consuelo Vanderbilt to the Duke of Marlborough was the occasion for a $12,000,000 pot passing overseas. Of this amount more than $2,500,000 went for the reconstruction of Blenheim castle in Scotland. The duke and duchess were recently divorced. He married another American girl, Gladys Deacon. She recently married Lieut. Col. Louis Jacques Balcen.

Gladys Vanderbilt, cousin of Consuelo, married Count Lazlo Szechenyi, a Hungarian nobleman. She had a fortune of $12,000,000 in her own right.
Other fortunes that American heiresses took to foreign noblemen:
Miss Anna Gould, married to Count Boni de Castellane, $10,000,000.
Miss May Goebel, married to the Duke of Roxburghe, $5,000,000.
Miss Praline Astor, now Mrs. H. H. Spender-Clay, $10,000,000.
Miss Bradley Martin, now Lady Craven, $15,000,000.
Fortunes totaling $100,000,000 were obtained with Miss Vivian Gould, now Lady Deedes; Miss Amy Phipps, now Hon. Mrs. Frederick Guest; Miss Gammet, now Lady Arthur Herbert; Miss Helen Zimmerman, now Duchess of Manchester, and other heiresses.

SOME DIVER, WE'LL SAY SO

May Merrilees, of New York, is one of the cleverest divers at the Harvard summer school. Here she is executing the difficult "double flip." Classmates pick her as a sure winner in the diving contests to be held in August.

EXPECT KECK TO BE BIG STAR THIS FALL

By DEAN SNYDER.
Stanley Keck, captain of the Princeton eleven, will be ready for the whistle this fall.
Despite the heat of mid-summer he is working daily in muftics at Chicago. He is spending the summer with Mark Eaton, Princeton freshman, last year. Every day they go through a rigid training program.
They tackle the dummy, practice line bucking and goal kicking. Keck proved himself great enough last fall to be named on the All-American.
He'll be even greater this fall.

WAKING UP
England is coming back as a world power in sports. The spirit is reviving which makes any nation a worthy leader. The change has been noted since the war.
Her weakness has been her own complacency. She has originated games, taught them to the world, and then sat back satisfied to see other countries develop the stars and cash in.
To be a winner in sport the players must take it seriously.
That is what England has not done in the past.

REMARKABLE
Mrs. May Soltan Bundy and Miss Mark K. Brown, both comebacks in tennis, are playing brilliantly in their early tests.
How these women have retained

their former greatness is truly remarkable.
They seem to have stepped back on the courts from their yesterday's same stars they were several years ago as champions.
About them there is still the original poise and mechanical skill.
In other sports a layoff of eight or ten years means disaster.
But Mrs. Bundy and Miss Brown are in condition to add other bright pages to their former tennis history.

ALL'S WELL
The New York Yankees didn't find "anything the matter with baseball" on their last western swing.
Habe Ruth & Co. showed off before Cleveland was the banner town. Eighty thousand turned out for the series. Detroit was second with 73,000 and Chicago third with 63,000. St. Louis was the weak sister with but 15,000.
This is better by 50,000 than the Yanks drew on their first western trip in 1920. Their second swing last year drew a total of 315,000, while their last one made the turnstiles click nearly 400,000 times.

COMPENSATION
When Vincent Richards defeated William T. Tilden world tennis champion, he was defeating his own teacher.
Tilden has always taken much interest in the youngster and shown him all he knows about tennis.
This case is like that of others.
Jim Jeffries was Jim Corbett's sparring partner at one time. He learned Corbett's style. Then there came a day when Jeff beat down his teacher.
Charlotte Boyle, then champ, gave Ethelda Bleibtrey her first swimming lessons.

BAY STATE BOARD SAYS WILSON STILL CHAMP

BOSTON, July 30.—Johnny Wilson is still world middleweight boxing champion so far as the Massachusetts boxing commission is concerned. The decision of Referee Jimmy Gardner that Bryan Downey struck him a foul blow in the seventh round of their bout at Cleveland, Wednesday night, will be recognized by the commission in this state. It was officially announced.
In refusing to accept the action of the Ohio boxing commission in reversing the referee's award, the Massachusetts commission holds that the referee is the final authority. His appointment by the Ohio commission, Commissioner Eugene N. Buckley of Massachusetts declared, carried with it supreme control over the contest.

Says Downey Champ
CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 30.—The Cleveland boxing commission is preparing a statement to be sent to all state boxing commissions and the national boxing commission today—reversing the decision of Referee Jimmy Gardner of Lowell, Mass., and giving the middle weight championship of the world to Bryan Downey of Cleveland. This was announced yesterday by W. B. Wilberling, chairman of the Cleveland boxing commission.
In a bout here Wednesday night, Referee Gardner gave Johnny Wilson of Boston, the champion, the decision on a foul in the seventh round, claiming Downey struck Wilson while the champion was down, following two previous knockdowns.

The local boxing commission reverses Referee Gardner's decision on the ground that, according to the official timekeeper, Wilson was down for 13 1/2 seconds on the first knockdown in the seventh round and for 11 seconds on the second, while Referee Gardner counted only nine on each occasion; that Downey did not hit Wilson while the champion was down and that if a foul was committed, it was by Marty Killian, manager of Wilson, when he placed his hand on his boxer while he was down in the seventh round.

Following protests growing out of the Wilson-Downey bout, Mayor W. S. Fitzgerald yesterday said:
"The next time any general protest is made against the way boxing matches are conducted here, I will prohibit further bouts."

BABE CONTINUES LONG DISTANCE SOCKS

Babe Ruth is making long-distance sock records one after another.
On June 13 and 14 he drove two record homers into the centre field bleachers—both homers landed in the right field bleachers—both feats being records for the Redland park.

BABE'S EYES

June 23 at Boston he sent the ball two-thirds the way up into the right field stands—the longest drive ever made in that city.
Babe's 53th homer, made in St. Louis, July 15, sailed over the centre-field bleachers and landed in the street for the St. Louis record.

BABE'S HANDS

And in Detroit, July 17 he pisted his 54th over the fence in centre field, fully 100 feet further than his 150-foot record made at the Polo grounds.

BABE'S FEET

JESS BURKETT SHINES AS 'OLD TIMERS' WIN

CLEVELAND, July 30.—While the old-timers were hardly to be expected to show much of their old fire, still all things considered, they did remarkably well yesterday, defeating the ex-band leaders, 11 to 6. While most of the old-time speed was absent, their enthusiasm kept them going. Cy Young, the hero of 500 major league battles, was on the mound for a couple of innings, and showed that he still possesses a fast ball and a fair curve. He allowed only one run, and at times dazzled the batters who faced him. Chief Zimmer, his old-time catcher in the Cleveland team about 30 years ago, was behind the bat when Cy hurled.
Jess Burkett, formerly leading batsman of the National League, put up a fine game and scored three hits and a pass in four trips to the plate. Nap Lajoie, formerly idol of the Cleveland fans, had a brave hit, while Bill Bradley was credited with three.
Nick Altrock mixed plenty of fun with his pitching work, thereby allowing the sand lotter to get away with three hits.
Fights of other days, Red Nesson, Heinie Berger and Earl Moore, made good appearances in the box succeeding Cy Young, and Moore shone especially, as he allowed but one hit during two innings.

Heaven-Hiters Game

PITTSBURGH, July 30.—The baseball game between the Pittsburgh and Boston teams, postponed yesterday, will be played off on Sept. 12, as part of a double-header. It was announced today.

They Do Tell That Prince Edward and Princess Mary Are Likely to Wed Commoners

By MILTON BRONNER
LONDON, July 30.—"It is announced that a marriage has been arranged between His Royal Highness, Edward, Prince of Wales, and—"

Princess Mary, does at 24. And all romance loving England is betting that if they ever do marry, it will be for love—and probably to commoners.

Many of their kinsmen on both their father's and their mother's side have made love matches. No reasons of state will compel Prince Edward to wed, because he has three brothers, the Duke of York, 22; Prince Henry, 21, and Prince George, 19, who are in line for the throne if anything happens to him or if he dies without issue.

Neither will he and his sister and brothers have to marry for money. The royal family is rich and parliament also has a way of providing generous grants for the princes and princesses.

If they did want to marry into royal families, it would prove difficult, because the great war played hob with the king business.

All the German and Austrian lot are in the ex-class and the Bolsheviks killed off the Russian family. The Italians are out of it because their princesses are Catholics and the British royal family may not marry anyone out of the established faith of England. The Greeks are out of it because their mother was a sister of the ex-kaiser.

Czar Boris, 27, of Bulgaria.

Crown Prince Frederick, 22, of Denmark.

Crown Prince of Sweden, 40, and a widower.

In high social circles of the capital, the names of the royal children are never counted with those of persons of royal lineage.

The Prince of Wales is said to be very much in love with a beautiful young widow who has high social standing, but whose blood is neither purple nor blue. And to make matters more difficult, she has two children.

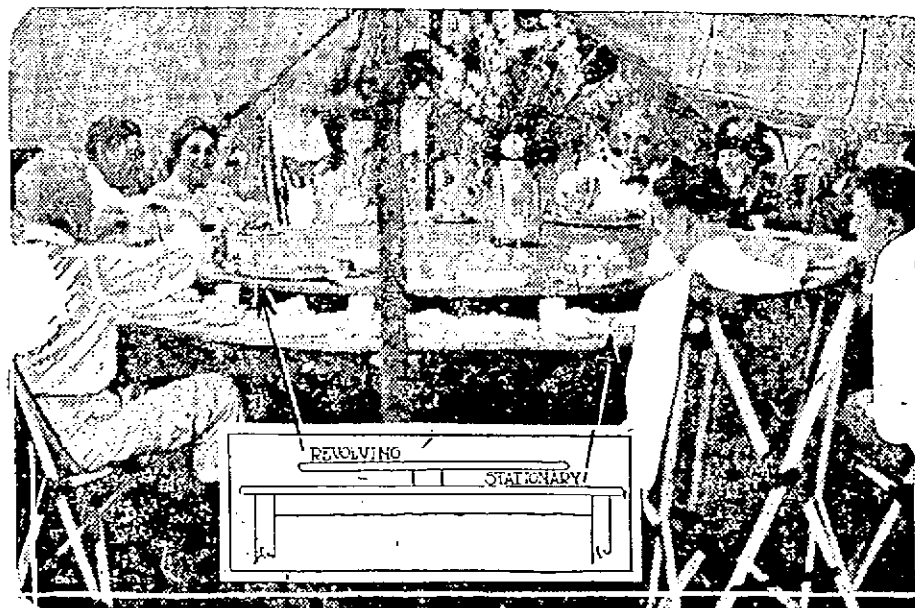

Princess Mary has no recognized suitors.

One thing is certain—if they please themselves by marrying into English families, they will immensely please the English people.

AND NOW WE HAVE DOUBLE-DECK DINING TABLE

The proverbial "boarding house reach" was unnecessary at the grub table in the Harding-Ford-Edison-Firestone camp at Licking Creek, Parkbank, Md. In fact it wasn't even necessary to say "please pass," for, by a simple whirl of the upper layer of a double-deck table provided by Host H. S. Firestone, any diner could bring anything, from soup to nuts, sailing around to him. There was occasional amusement at grub hour when two diners simultaneously decided to bring the same viand forth—but the double-deck affair was much handier than the usual camping way of grab. In this picture Harding is shown just to the right of the bouquet, and Mr. and Mrs. Ford next to him. Edison is just to the left of the flowers.

Found Dead in Front of Fashionable Hotel

MISTRESS OF WHITE HOUSE IS A GREAT SOCIAL LEADER

(Special to The Sun)
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 30.—Some one recently asked, "How does the wife of a president spend her time, and what does she do as 'mistress of the White House'?"

The answer might well be, "She works" for as wife of the president, the first lady of the land finds herself involved in a round of social duties that can't be shifted to other shoulders. She is at the head of the entire social life of the capital of the greatest nation in the world. She must set the pace for all official entertaining, receive all persons properly entitled to call upon her, and must be a wife, a housewife and social arbiter at one and the same time.

The wives of other presidents have had a similar course to follow, except in instances where they were recognized as invalids, and were relieved from social duties by some other member of the presidential family. This was especially noticeable in the McKinley administration as Mrs. McKinley's health permitted no responsibilities of any sort whatever.

But let's take the daily routine of Mrs. Harding's life in the White House, for example. In the first place Mrs. Harding continues her life-long custom of getting up early and having breakfast with the president long before the eyes of the society women of the city have been opened to the morning light.

Breakfast finished, the president goes to the executive office and Mrs. Harding to her study, where, assisted by her social secretary, Miss Harlan, she goes through an amount of mail that would stagger a business man. People ask for all sorts of information and favors. "Will you contribute a handkerchief for our sale?" "Will you be a patroness of the concert to be given for the benefit, etc." Will you use your influence with the president to bring about this or that piece of legislation; begging letters, letters asking for endorsement of proposed "uplift" measures; personal questions regarding her daily life and habits, which would never be thrust upon the attention of any woman other than the wife of a president. But Mrs. Harding is trained to a business life through her close connection with the work of Mr. Harding as publisher and business man. This stands her in good stead now, for she is able at a glance to sift the wheat from the chaff and turn out the work with speed and without annoyance.

Social Calls

Then comes a series of calls from visiting organizations of women, who have made appointments for a certain hour. Mrs. Harding leaves the family rooms on the second floor and receives her guests in the blue room just off the great east dining room. She is unassisted, although one of the White House military or naval aids is always at her side during the simple ceremony. Perhaps there is a let-up for a brief interval, in which Mrs. Harding may stroll through the big rose garden which flanks the south porch of the White House, or sit a while in the shadows of the thick vines which shelter that Colonial porch from the hot rays of a summer sun. Then comes luncheon which the president and usually some men of prominence in political circles share—for the president's lunch combines business with the noon-day snack. After the Tuesday and Friday cabinet meetings, Secretary or War Weeks, Secretary of the Navy and Secretary of State Hughes, together with Postmaster General Hays are pretty sure to say "yes" to the president's cordial "You had better stay to lunch today, we can talk it over at leisure then. In fact, it is a pretty safe guess that very many of the great and far-reaching policies of the nation are determined at the simple luncheons in the state dining room with Mrs. Harding sitting just across the polished mahogany table, from the seat the president occupies. After lunch, the president goes back to his office, and Mrs. Harding keeps other appointments with a round of official visitors. Late in the afternoon Mrs. Harding may get a breathing spell, and perhaps join the president in a drive to the golf links and where she spends a pleasant hour on the veranda of the clubhouse, while the president makes the rounds. And between while, during the routine of official life, Mrs. Harding finds time for a lot of charitable work, to do many things for the pleasure and welfare of the wounded and maimed boys out at the Walter Reed hospital; direct the housekeeping of the great establishment of which she is the head; to receive the members of the senate, congressional and diplomatic circles and perform the varied duties of the wife of the executive. She has shaken hands with tens of thousands of people—and greeted them one and all with true cordiality and a genuine welcome. She is a woman, and her enthusiasm and good comradeship are never failing. It's a 50-50 guess that when the Harding administration comes to an end, it will be Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Grover Cleveland Preston who will go down in history as the most diplomatic, charming and successful hostesses the White House has ever known.

Suite Dinners

The Hardings, as did the Cleverlands, make dinner a quiet family affair, except when a state dinner is on the program, although they frequently invite intimate friends to dine informally with them. Those informal invitations are given over the telephone. The Wilsons did particularly no entertaining beyond what official etiquette called for, except the frequent visits of Mrs. Wilson's immediate family, who lived scarcely a stone's throw from the White House. President Wilson did not enjoy dinner giving or informal entertaining, and apparently both the first and second ladies were entirely content to follow his lead in that respect. The Tatts and the Roosevelts kept "open house" where boys, girls and grown-ups were ever present and ever welcome guests, and the Hardings are living as near a normal home life as it is possible for the chief executive of a nation to do.

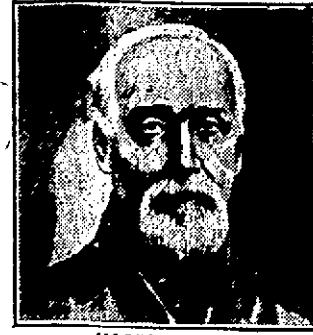

Surprised the Luncheon Club

President and Mrs. Harding have set a new precedent-breaking pace this week. It has for a century been an unwritten law that a president may not accept social invitations from individuals, although occasionally he may appear at organization banquets and the like. Neither has "Mrs. President" been available for social affairs among her personal friends. But the Hardings are very fond of their former colleagues in the senatorial circle, regardless of political faith. So when Mrs. Coolidge, wife of the vice president suggested to Mrs. Harding that she should "come to the next luncheon" given by the Luncheon club of which Mrs. Harding was a former member, and which is composed entirely of women of senators' families, Mrs. Harding immediately accepted. And when the hour came Mrs. Harding, Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Pomeroy—wife of a democratic senator—surprised the other members and brought them to their feet by walking into the room just as lunch was being served, and Mrs. Harding joined them at the table in the same old fashion as when she was merely a club member instead of mistress of the White House. And the same week the president made a week-end camping out trip with Henry Ford and a few other well known men, sleeping in tents, cooking over camp fires and having as unconventional and merrymaking as if he were not president of the greatest nation in the world, and this week will visit the up-country summer home of Secretary of War John W. Weeks, on the edge of the White mountains, where he can join in the hayting, tend sheep, catch brook trout and otherwise live a back-to-nature life.

MOSES MURPHY

Moretown, Vermont, March 27th 1918.

"I am warranted in having the strongest faith in 'Fruit-a-tives' after receiving such wonderful benefits from them. For years, I was a sufferer with Kidney and Liver Complaints. My back ached; my liver was sluggish; and my whole system seemed out of order.

'Fruit-a-tives' was the only remedy to help me. They strengthened the kidneys, made my bowels move regularly and freed me of all the distress caused from the kidney trouble, constipation and indigestion. A few weeks' treatment with 'Fruit-a-tives' made me feel as if I had a new lease on life, and I am glad to make known the great value of L. D. Fruit Liver Tablets."

Bergdoll meeting of investigation when Braun, a brother of Bergdoll, called Representative Johnson of Kentucky a liar, recalls an earlier episode in congress, in which Mr. Johnson was one of the two men whom it is quite safe to call a liar, and Chairman John H. Peters of Maine knew his job when he did not lose a minute in adjourning the meeting and catching hold of Johnson's coat-tail while he shouted out the words, Johnson is a man of powerful build, tall, stocky, and in spite of his years in the very pink of condition. He is a genuine southern fire-eater and in the old days didn't hesitate to plug his man with whatever weapon came handiest. And he is proud of that old record, too. Fortunately for Braun, Johnson was sitting at the far end of the long committee table so the quick plunge he made for the witness was intercepted by other members of the committee, who held Johnson back by leg, arm and body till the sergeant-at-arms could hustle Braun out of the room. Peters of Maine, instantly shouted, "The meeting is adjourned," then grabbed Johnson, with a grip befitting Peters' own height and strength.

All this recalls an exciting scene in the house a few years ago when Uncle Joe Cannon was speaker and Johnson who as chairman of an important committee resented a ruling made by the speaker.

White with rage at what he regarded as a personal affront, Johnson strode down the middle aisle of the great house chamber, and approaching close to the speaker's desk shouted: "If it were not for your age, I'd throw a brick at you." Leaning far over the intervening desk, Johnson's old gray-haired speaker looked Johnson squarely and fearlessly in the face. Then said with cutting coldness and deliberation, "I beg you do not let my age stand in your way." For a moment the situation was tense. Uncle Joe stood with gavel up-raised, while a hundred men rushed to Johnson's side to restrain him. Then Uncle Joe let the gavel fall with the usual announcement, "The house will be in order." The uproar ceased and the incident was closed.

That time the sympathy was all with Uncle Joe, but it's a safe guess that this time the committee and crowd of on-lookers were with Johnson heart and soul. But they say there wasn't much spare room left under the committee table by the time all the women—and some of the men—present, had made successful dives from their exposed seats between the belabored.

And to the old timers in the press gallery, who know Johnson's long reach and his intensity of purpose, that dive of spectators was regarded as evidence of sound judgment.

STOP BUILDING LOWELL STREETS WITH LOWELL LABOR AND BRING TO LOWELL CHEAP HELP FROM BOSTON WHERE THOUSANDS ARE OUT OF WORK

That's what you will do if you vote for contract labor. Which is the more important—

Provide work for our own citizens, who are specialists in their line, or have them line up in the charity department?

Here is the Real Issue of this Campaign--

To put through this scheme of contract labor, which means graft and corruption on the part of contractors and officials on the one hand, and the elimination of Lowell labor on the other, the Chamber of Commerce Advertising Campaign has resorted to a desperate campaign of misrepresentation.

They allege that our streets are in bad condition.

It is true. Some of them are.

But they do not say that we have also the best paved streets in America, built by Lowell labor. For proof of this statement look at Merrimack, Central, Gorham, Bridge, Pawtucket, Thorndike, Dutton, East Merrimack and many other streets which have paving that will last fifty years without repairs—built by Lowell labor.

The Chamber of Commerce does not tell you that every city in the state is two years behind its street building program because of the war, when labor was scarce and materials were high.

Lowell has the best paved streets and the best cared for streets at this moment, than any other city in Massachusetts, including Boston, where, under contract labor, the principal streets of the city are in horrible condition.

IT IS AN ABSOLUTE LIE

When the Chamber of Commerce advertises that the cost per yard of paving in Lowell is $13 a square yard. According to figures at the office of Commissioner Murphy, street paving has averaged from $4 to $6 a yard on all the jobs done throughout the city.

What confidence can the people have in anything the Chamber of Commerce does if these false figures and untruths are published?

Is That the Reason Why the Chamber of Commerce fails to Sign the Name of Any Person Responsible for the Statements Printed?

ABLE TO DO HER WORK

After Long Suffering Mrs. Siefert Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pottsville, Pa.—"I suffered with female trouble for four or five years and was very irregular. I was not fit to do my work at times and took medicine from a doctor and got no benefit. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers and took it and got all right. I gained twenty pounds or more and am now able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. SALLIE SIEFERT, 313 W. Fourth Street, Pottsville, Pa.

The everyday life of many housewives is a continual struggle with weakness and pain. There is nothing more wearing than the ceaseless round of household duties and they become doubly hard when some female trouble makes every bone and muscle ache, and nerves all on edge.

If you are one of these women do not suffer for four or five years as Mrs. Siefert did, but profit by her experience and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE PAVING REFERENDUM

What is this special election that is to be held here August 9? Why was it necessary to bring it on at this time?

These are questions that will be asked by a great many people who have not paid much attention to the events leading up to the decision to hold the election.

The condition of our public streets around unfavorable comment throughout the city. The owners of autos were particularly bitter in their criticism of the streets, because of the injury to their cars resulting from riding over streets cut up by traffic and showing holes and broken patches in which the surface had been torn away. Taxpayers also felt that better streets would improve their property, and hence they favored the movement. The chamber of commerce took up the matter and favored having smooth paving done by contract. The municipal council having refused to be a party to contract work, on a single street, the chamber then decided to invoke the initiative provision of the city charter. As the council still remained obdurate, the alternative of submitting the question to a referendum of the people was obligatory under the charter, and thus the date for the election was fixed.

Now that the election will be held a week from next Tuesday, the people want to know the merits of the case. Nobody can deny that most of our public streets are in very bad condition. There must be an improvement. How will it be obtained? The question of expenses enters here and should be considered in deciding the issue at the polls. Already the assessors have announced that the tax rate this year will be not less than $30. It may be more; but even at that figure, there will be a very general increase in rents which will affect every workman as well as every taxpayer.

The Sun favors this movement, to meet an emergency and to give us better streets at a reasonable cost. The opponents of the plan raise a howl that contractors will rob the city. This is a false alarm, and the fact that corruption may be shown in other cities under the contract system, does not prove that contract grafting will be permitted in Lowell. It cannot be termed robbery if a contractor gives a bond as a guarantee that he will give the city block paving at a price much lower than what it would cost if done by the street department.

Those who are opposed to the contract system assume the role of defenders of street department methods and street department extravagance. The men of the street department will not be dropped. They will have all they can do on repairs and while they are endeavoring to repair the streets that are in poor condition, the contractors can be laying block paving on the streets that need it most.

This is a great movement for public improvements that will make our city a better place in which to live and do business. We are on the eve of a new era of civic progress for the city of Lowell. When the splendid auditorium and the magnificent high school are finished, Lowell will have reason to be proud of her municipal buildings and will be in a position to compete with the great cities of the country for conventions as well as for new industries. Nothing gives strangers such a favorable impression of a city as good streets and fine public buildings. We are moving toward the realization of a high civic ideal.

An appeal was made a few days ago to local service men asking them to vote against contract work on street construction, as it would bring in men from the outside, perhaps from the South Sea Islands, to work on Lowell streets. If it does, then the municipal council will be blamed for to the council will be entrusted the duty to see that Lowell labor, so far as obtainable, is employed. Service men know the meaning of the following plain terms:

"Such contract shall be entered into, only after bids therefor have been called for by public advertisement, and shall contain such legal provisions for the employment of laborers of persons resident in Lowell as the municipal council shall approve."

That is the wording of the initiative petition and it completely demolishes the charge that laborers at $2 per day will be imported from distant places. Thus it appears that in the interests of the workman, the taxpayer, the auto owner, and citizens in general, every registered voter should vote "yes" at the coming special election. The women in particular should make an effort to vote on this occasion, as it will redound to their pleasure and benefit if the city has first-class streets. The movement for better streets is for the greatest good of the greatest number and it is directed only against inefficiency in our street department as indicated by the broken and even dangerous condition of a great many of our public streets.

OBEY THE LAW

A significant utterance slipped from the lips of one of the witnesses in the trial of District Attorney Tutts before the supreme court. The witness stated, and apparently no one has attempted to dispute the accuracy of his assertion, that it has been the custom of district attorneys of Middlesex county for many years to ignore certifications from the superior court of divorces granted on the ground of adultery. It is suspected that the alleged practice in Middlesex has been followed in most of the other counties of the state.

The law of the state requires that whenever the evidence introduced in a divorce case in the superior court is considered sufficiently conclusive to warrant the granting of a divorce, the court must enter a finding of adultery. The facts in the case shall be certified to the office of the district attorney of the county in which the case is tried. The law certainly presumes that the district attorney shall take steps to bring to punishment the party who has been adjudged guilty by a superior court judge of having violated a law of the state by the commission of a crime which the law-makers looked upon as being sufficiently serious to warrant the imposition of a prison sentence. It is difficult to understand why district attorneys have come to look with such leniency upon offenders whose acts have struck at the foundation of family life and social decency. In view of the fact that the divorce finding practically amounts to a conviction of guilt, it cannot be that the law officers have been held back in the performance of their duty through belief that it would be difficult to obtain sufficient evidence to warrant convictions. It is not a symptom of healthy public sentiment that this wholesome provision of the law for the protection of the home and society has been permitted to become practically a dead letter without a serious protest being made. It would doubtless be better to have the statute wiped out than to have a continuance of its nullification.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

It would be interesting doubtless if we could look into the minds of some residents of Lowell who have most recently arrived from foreign shores and see their ideas and conceptions of American institutions and the new life into which they have entered. To many of the so-called "foreigners" the policemen on the beat stands perhaps more than anything else for the new government under which they have come to live. In his blue coat and brass buttons he is doubtless to many an unsophisticated recent arrival the embodiment of Uncle Sam. As the officer is courteous, kindly and helpful or gruff, grouchy and over-aggressive, he may help to produce a local citizen or a disgruntled and irritated person who falls easily for the absurd doctrines of "Red" agitators.

Through ignorance of the law, or from causes due to their having been rooted up from all of the conventions and restrictions of their home lands, some of our foreign friends and neighbors may be misled. It would seem to be wholly desirable that they should have a favorable impression of the orderly dignity of the law that will place it in a favorable light in their eyes. Many of our police courts—and the one in Lowell is a notable example—are not housed as they should be. They are in dismal and dingy quarters. They are not always over-clean. The proceedings are often conducted with a lack of decorum and orderliness that must appear strange to eyes accustomed to the dignified procedure and pomp of European courts of justice.

Sooner or later this city, in conjunction with the county, must take into consideration the matter of providing more satisfactory quarters for the local district court. The present room and been used for many years and is now far from being suitable for the purposes for which it is utilized. The room is unavoidably noisy, and even the judge upon the bench not infrequently is obliged to strain his ears to keep track of the proceedings.

THE IRISH OUTLOOK

The Irish republicans seem to have arrived at the same impasse which defeated the work of the constitutional convention a few years ago. Ireland was told she could have her rule over Ireland, could agree upon a definite plan. That was a delusion, for the reason that it was known in advance that Ulster would not agree to any form of home rule in which she would have to lose her ascendancy. For over a century Ulster has enjoyed government favors and at the opening of the war, England allowed her to plan and threaten revolution and even an alliance with Germany if home rule were granted. At the protest of Ulster the home rule act was revoked and the partition act enacted. This led to the rebellion. Against Ulster blockades a settlement and it is futile for the republicans longer to indulge the hope that the Ulster men will agree to any arrangement that would restore the unity of Ireland and place a single parliament over the entire nation to be ruled by a popular majority. It is in order for the government, therefore, to bring Ulster to terms if the leaders hold out against the self-determination demanded by the Irish people. England is not settling the Irish question if she imposes an impossible condition. She might as well say to the people of Ireland, "If your leaders fly to the moon, they can afterwards have any kind of government they want except that which would cut them off from the empire for whose protection the connection must be maintained."

The situation is reported as hopeful; but the Irish leaders are struggling against the obstinacy of Ulster for which there is no defensible reason. But if Ulster holds out and is permitted to destroy this opportunity of settling the question, then the struggle will be renewed and blood will continue to flow on both sides.

EXTORTION IN COAL

Fuel Administrator Hultman has found that the Hudson Coal company of New York is selling coal cheaper to Canadian dealers than to those of New England; and yet there seems to be no remedy. Last year New England was mulcted in the sum of seven million dollars by the coal speculators in charges over and above the price at which coal was sold for to other parts of the country. He hoped that they will not be allowed to work a similar extortion upon the people of New England this year. It seems that our United States senators should look into this matter with a view to protecting their constituents against this bare-faced extortion. The New England states should act in unison on this matter, which equally affects all of them. Mr. Hultman has notified the federal trade commission of this injustice with a view to having some equitable arrangement made, but these companies are able to evade the law and get away with it even to a greater extent than most other concerns in the country. It seems that the various investigations of the coal business at Washington and all the talk by congress did not amount to much since the price of coal is abnormally high and the distribution irregular and charges unfair.

AIRPLANE CARRIERS

Senator King wants work stopped on all battleships, and two cruisers now building converted into airplane carriers. He bases his senate resolution on the recent airplane-battleship tests off the Atlantic coast.

According to the senator these tests proved that battleships are obsolete. Undoubtedly the tests proved that the air service is becoming an increasingly important factor in naval strength.

Both Great Britain and Japan recognized this long ago by incorporating airplane carriers in their building programs.

These carriers are ships of great speed and the largest of them, a Japanese carrier, has a capacity of 30 airplanes. In a fleet action, all other factors being equal, the advantage to a fleet with one or two such units is obvious.

Senator King is right in demanding airplane carriers for our navy, but not as substitutes for battleships.

A GOOD SUGGESTION

The suggestion of Senator Borah that decision on the plan for refunding the eleven billion dollars owed us by foreign nations, be postponed until after the Washington disarmament conference, has much to commend it.

While there is no direct connection between this foreign debt and disarmament there is a very close connection between the financial situation in which the nations of the world find themselves and the vast expenditures for armaments.

We can afford to be a much more generous creditor if by agreement we can cut our armament expenditures to a nominal figure.

Without indulging in any threats to the American delegates to the conference could very well point this out to the delegates of the debtor nations if they fail to take a reasonable view of our disarmament proposals.

SUCCESS

If an epitaph be written on John Wanamaker's tombstone, he wants it to read something like this: "This man knew how to advertise."

To advertising intelligently and persistently the famous merchant attributes a large part of his success. He started early. The first day he was in business as a storekeeper he took in $24.67 and straightway spent $24 of it for advertising. "The best investment I ever made," he says.

The latest report of the superintendent of streets should furnish convincing evidence to any who may be in doubt on the subject that, with new construction work in the hands of contractors, there will be an abundance of employment for repair work for the highway department workers. The superintendent is to be congratulated on putting a permanent repair gang to work. It is certainly much needed.

The British ambassador evidently is not such a mighty messianic as the British government tells him that he shall not receive a certain personal friend as a guest in the embassy and he stands at attention and answers "Aye, aye, sir," as subserviently as the humblest English "Tommy."

That rupture between Premier Lloyd George and Lord Northcliffe is becoming more acute. The cancellation of the ambassadorial dinner at Washington is a direct slap at the great newspaperman. Nevertheless, he will ultimately triumph.

Perhaps the location of the municipal bathing beach was selected with the end in view that people would enjoy the cooling waters more if it were necessary that they should get it "hot up" in getting to it. Still it is worth the trip.

The Billerica finance committee is soon to get into action for the year, and it may be expected that citizens up that way will begin to complain that the members are poking their noses into too many things that have no connection with finances.

Not many bouquets have been moving in the direction of the Eastern Massachusetts street railway lately. It richly deserves to be commended, though, for its cheap and attractive excursions to the beach during this torrid summer.

Japan finally decides to enter the peace parley with certain reservations. She naturally fears a sort of combination of the English-speaking peoples as a result of widespread British propaganda in an effort to realize such union.

Two billion dollars for the farmers, who stayed at home and reaped rich profits during the war, but not a penny for a bonus for the soldiers who fought, seems to be the avowed policy of the Harding administration.

The mounting death rate should be an incentive for the city departments to get together and give the children street shower baths as has been done with such happy results in other places.

"Vacation Travel is Light," says a headline. Just below it is the statement, "No inducements in the shape of reduced rates are being offered to tourists." Is this a case of effect and cause?

The initiative election publicity of the chamber of commerce illustrates anew that the most effective advertising is that which deals with solid facts.

Why not Armistice day for the first meeting of the international disarmament conference? It would be in accordance with the eternal fitness of things.

SEEN AND HEARD

The best is none too good if you can afford it.

An optimist is one who looks upon a long season of unusual hot weather as a preparatory school.

What's become of the old man who used to save matches by lighting his pipe at the stove?

Give a youth with a half of one per cent. brain an automobile and then read about it in the newspaper.

One way of being charitable is to put yourself in the other fellow's shoes before passing judgment upon him.

Life guards are human. That's why they pay so much attention to pretty bathers in captivating bathing togs while homely mortals are left to splash for themselves.

It's a long hark back to the days when we came home from the dance, behind the old gray mare, the reins thrown over the dasher, our arms around Mary Ann and her precious head on our shoulder.

Barber's Proposal

A hot Springs widow says the latest proposal she has received was from a Central avenue barber, who said that after working hard all day he longs to go home to a face that doesn't need anything done to it.

The City Rubes

She had been visiting on a farm for a week and was letting the world know it. Her companion, also, apparently had seldom been off the brick streets. "And how is the corn this year?" the companion asked. "Doing just fine," was the reply, "but the alpacas needs irrigating, Mr. Brown said."

An Important Query

"Father," said a little boy thoughtfully, as he watched his parent collect his notes and arrange the lantern slides for a church entertainment, "why is it that when you spend your holiday in the Holy Land you always give a lantern lecture on it? You never do when you have been to Paris!"

The Wise Tailor

"Mr. Smith," a man asked his tailor, "how is it you have not called on me for your account?" "O, I never ask a gentleman for money." "Indeed! How, then, do you get on if he doesn't pay?" "Why," replied the tailor, after a momentary hesitation, "after a certain time I conclude he is not a gentleman, and then I ask him."

The Vacation Problem

"Where'll I spend my vacation?" You've asked yourself the question a hundred times. You've studied folders from mountain and seaside resorts, summer hotels, jazz resorts and excursions. When some of America's most famous men—Edison, Ford and Firestone wanted a rest, they went back to nature, in a portable camp at the woods. There's a tip for you in that. For after all, there's nothing so refreshing as a quiet night under the stars, a sizzling meal over a campfire and a sparkling drink from "an old oaken bucket."

A Mentality Test

On for Maine

Good-bye, old man; I'm leaving you for just a little while; My traps are packed and time moves all too slow. The soaring pines are calling me from many a balmy mile. Old love, forgive me if I want to go. Read not in my impatience aught of censure or reproach. Full soon one's interest begins to wane. In midday street at fever heat, in blazing midnight roof, I'm off for Kennebago, off for Maine!

Good-bye, old books; To you how strange and bootless it may seem. To be each on his right and proper shelf. And all at once—when last came true so wild a weird a dream? I can't remember when it was myself!

You'll have a rest while I'm away, you fellows of wit, Philosophy, romance and verses wait. A book of files is all the books that's in my crowded kit, I'm off for Kennebago, off for Maine!

Good-bye, old den! When I am gone a soulless brush and broom Will dispossess each molecule of dust. That with a nice disorder made you more than just a room, I'll breathe the bracing scent of silver rain. Or sleep with soothing starlight on my tired but happy eyes. I'm off for Kennebago, off for Maine!

Good-bye, Minette! My last good-bye I've saved, you see, for you. Miss me a very little if you will! Perhaps when I come home again I shall have learned to see. For your regard with warmer, better skill. Perhaps you will have learned to care, perhaps you will wear for me.

Will share with me love's light and tender chain. This thought, this hope, my dearest one, the summer long will be. By Kennebago, at the top of Maine. —Edward W. Barnard in New York Evening Post.

A Woman's Health Four Colonial Premiers to Shape British Position at Conference

Every woman's health is peculiarly dependent upon the condition of her blood. How many women suffer with headache, pain in the back, poor appetite, weak digestion, a constant feeling of weariness, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, pallor and nervousness? If you have any of these symptoms, do not despair of getting better, but begin now, today, to build up your blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. See how the nervous energy of the body is restored as the blood becomes pure and red, and the entire system is strengthened to meet every demand upon it.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are useful for all women, but they are particularly valuable to girls of school age who show symptoms of going into a decline, who become pale, nervous and languid. These pills aid in securing perfect development and health by strengthening the system and purifying and building up the blood. Thin blood during the growing years of a girl's life usually means a flat-chested and hollow-checked womanhood. There can be neither health nor beauty without red blood which gives brightness to the eyes and color to cheeks and lips.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

The weather man has been trying out some very effective camouflage on Lowell people this week. He's getting them all worked up in the expectation of severe thunder storms and then fooling them by not going through with his threats. For instance, about 10 o'clock Wednesday night many Lowell people heard distinct rumbles of what sounded like thunder. They rolled over the city just as though a heavy storm were brewing. Flashes in the sky were interpreted as the advance guard of a good old-fashioned electrical storm. But no storm came, not a drop of rain fell and those who had sufficient presence of mind to look heavenward found the sky dotted with stars. The "thunder and lightning" were nothing more than the explosion of fireworks at Lakeview park. A friend tells me Camouflage No. 2 came Thursday night, shortly after 6:30 when the sky actually darkened, huge black clouds rolled across the horizon and there were a few claps of thunder. The wind blew in regular hurricane style. The stage was set perfectly for one of the biggest storms of the season. There was a hurried rush to close windows and to take in clothes that were out drying. People away from home in their summer flannels made for places of shelter. Then after all this preparation a few drops of rain fell and it was all over. Not even a heavy clap of thunder came with the rain. What a gay old deceiver the weather man can be when he wants to!

In line with the influx of women into men's work in the cities, it is interesting to note that women in far larger numbers are taking up farming. Census bureau reports show that 23,557 women today are operating farms, totaling 25,798,400 acres and averaging 98.6 acres to the farm. Percentage of farms operated by women in the states varied from 1.9 per cent of the whole in Nebraska to 7.2 per cent in Rhode Island.

The hearing held by Mayor Thompson on the charges made by Alexander Crutcher against the police department, brought out the fact that Captain Atkinson took the liberty of ordering the prisoner brought in on complaint of Mr. Crutcher to be held for "safe keeping" and not as a suspicious person. That showed that Officer Aldrich, who made the arrest, had the prisoner booked as a suspicious person at the station. The officer was, therefore, not responsible for having him held merely for safe keeping.

By HARRY HUNT

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Great Britain's position at the coming conference on disarmament and the adjustment of far eastern affairs will be largely shaped by the pressure of the premiers of her four great colonies—Meighan of Canada, Hughes of Australia, Massey of New Zealand, and Smuts of South Africa.

Australia, particularly, is intensely interested in the far eastern questions that will be raised at the conference. Premier Hughes has been the chief proponent for the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, on the ground that such an alliance fortified the cause of "white Australia" and shielded that country from encroachment by Japan.

To a lesser degree the same is true of New Zealand. Canada's interest runs largely parallel to that of the United States.

This government has indicated its willingness to adjust the time of the conference to suit the convenience of these colonial premiers, but stressing the desire that it be not later than November.

At least three of the premiers, Hughes, Massey and Meighan, are considered almost certain to attend. Attendance of Britain's colonial premiers will not give that nation an extra number of "votes" in the conference. It is said in official circles. Many protests were made against the make-up of the assembly of the League of Nations for the same reason.

There will be no votes, as such. There must be either agreement by each nation, or disagreement. The colonial premiers, as members of the delegation of Great Britain, might help sway the decision of that nation, but that would be a matter inside the British group. The final decision would come as the stand of the British government, which of course would be presented as a unit, as would the decisions of Japan, the United States, or other nations participating.

Aside from the self-interest of Australia and New Zealand in desiring a renewal of the Anglo-Jap alliance, the feeling in official quarters here is one of friendliness toward the participation in the conference of the heads of Britain's colonies. In the main their interests are more nearly parallel to those of the United States than are those of England.

Alexander the Great is said to have been buried in a gold coffin.

Nancy, Nick and Sprinkle-Flow watched to see what would happen. Marty Mink was down on the bottom of the pool watching his chance to reach up and grab Blackie Bass, while Cob Coon in the willow-tree overhead was going to grab him from above. Neither knowing the other was there, Cob Coon had one hand in the water, by this time, reaching down and down. "This is the place," he kept whispering to himself. "I ought to know, for I've watched Blackie for years and he always stays in the same spot, except in winter. Ha!" he cried out all at once. "I've got something. I've got him!" But suddenly his smile faded. "Here you, Blackie, don't bite me that way!" he yelled. "Hey, hold on, don't pull so hard. I didn't know you could pull so. Oh, I'm slipping! Ledge, Blackie! Help! Help! Oh, he—!"

FAYETTE STREET WOMAN WINS HOPE CHEST

The hope chest offered by St. Margaret's parish as the prize of a drawing contest in connection with its recent lawn party has been awarded to Mary Clark of 155 Fayette street. The drawing was held last evening on the grounds of St. Peter's orphanage with Mayor Thompson performing the honors. Charles J. Calligan, pastor of St. Margaret's, and Dr. Frank Brady, later in the evening Rev. Fr. Gailligan and the mayor called upon Miss Clark to inform her of her good luck and to extend their congratulations. The chest contained a wide assortment of articles, valued at several hundred dollars.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By Theatres' Own Press Agents.)

MERRIMACK SQ. THEATRE

Feature for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday

You can step into any theatre to witness an ordinary performance but if you are of the type who insist on the best and only the best at all times your Lowell amusement headquarters should be the Merrimack Square theatre. Here you are always sure of seeing the best obtainable photograph.

The features of the Sunday program will be "Oh Lady, Lady," starring pretty Bebe Daniels, and "Merely Mary Ann," another captivating production with Shirley Mason in the lead role.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be red letter days at this theatre. The big features will be "A Wise Fool," a George Melford production adapted from one of Sir Gilbert P Parker's stories, and "The Lost Romance," a William De Mille photoplay.

Sir Gilbert P Parker, author of "The Money Master" of which "A Wise Fool" is the picturization, is one of the foremost writers of modern day fiction. His books have been most popular with the public, and especially his stories which have for their setting Canadian northwest and which portray in immediate detail the lives of the people of that locale, and their respective eccentricities, habits and customs. That his books lend themselves readily to the screen was shown by the success of Mr. Melford's production of "Behold My Wife!" which was founded on Sir Gilbert's novel, "The Translocation of a Savage."

The story of "The Wise Fool" is one of great appeal. Jean Jacques, a wealthy egotist and philosopher in a small Parish of Quebec sets out to see the world, and turns his course towards Paris. Finding himself alone and unknown in the great French city, he starts on his return home where he is the idol and leader of his people. On the steamship he meets Sebastian Dolores, a Spanish impoverished exile and his pretty daughter, Carmen.

The vessel strikes an iceberg and Jean Jacques is the hero of the hour. When the craft sinks, he is about to perish, not being a good swimmer, but Carmen, who is clinging to a piece of wreckage, comes to his assistance and they get to the shore. He marries Carmen and takes her and his indolent father to his home. A daughter, Zoe, is born.

After some years, because of Jean Jacques' unintentional neglect and because the people of his parish have never really welcomed him, Carmen becomes restless, and falls in love with George Masson, a carpenter, who comes to mend the mill flue. Jean Jacques overhears them plotting to elope, and the next day almost takes Masson's life, but at the latter's pleading, spares him.

Carmen goes to Masson who refuses to betray Jean Jacques. Jean Jacques then goes to Montreal to earn his living as a chorus girl. The manager insults her and she takes refuge in a convent. Zoe, Jean Jacques' daughter, now falls in love with Gerald Fynes, a "man from outside," against her father's will. From this point on the story becomes increasingly interesting. The climax is one of the most surprising witnessed in a photoplay in many months.

The other feature for the first half of the week is "The Lost Romance," starring Conrad Nagel and Lois Wilson. It is a Paramount picture dealing with all the themes of every day life and telling a story of wonderful appeal. It has been produced with all the artistry, naturalness and human appeal that made William De Mille's "Midsummer Madness" a popular record-breaker.

A Fox comedy, "His Mea Ticket,"

THE STRAND THEATRE

"The Palace of Darkened Windows" at the Strand for First Three Days of the Week

The biggest production yet released by the National Pictures Theatres is "The Palace of Darkened Windows," which is announced for a first run at the Strand for the first three days of the coming week. The story, which was adapted from the book of the same name by Mary Hastings Bradley, is a colorful and picturesque tale of following a clue they reach the Rajah's pretentious Indian encampment, and then in a stirring climax the story comes to a close with Arlee so thankful at being free again that she never wants to see him again.

WELL, THE POOR FISH!

Girls don't spend all their time angling for hearts. Here's proof—three maids who vary the monotony by casting for the original poor fish. The funny victim on the line of Miss Mary Beverly Stevens, University of California (right) seems glad the strain and suspense is over. Bet he's not the first poor fish to get hooked by this pretty girl. Miss Bertha Mae Kirk (upper) shows to what length some girls will go to gain their desire; she's climbing a log out over Hell Hole in Wyoming, in search of the rainbow trout. In the center Miss Helen E. Twyn is darning the hole of a Snake River pool to strike.

C. H. MAY CO.

The C. H. May Co. is the local distributor for the U. S. storage battery. It also carries a full stock of Vesta U.S.L. and Ever-Ready batteries. Now is the time to fill your coal bin if you have not yet done it. The Horne Coal Co. is ready to accept your order for your winter's supply of fuel and deliver it in short notice. Take advantage of this month's prices and the good quality of coal sold by the Horne Coal Co., whose office is at 9 Central street.

BIBEAULT & STEVENS

Hassler shock absorbers should be on every automobile and if you are not already equipped with these absorbers, which are noted as among the best on the market, go to Bibeaault & Stevens 612 Middlesex street, at once. They are agents for the Hassler in this city.

H. V. PERREAULT

If H. V. Perreault does it, it will be done well. Perreault is a contractor of wide experience. He is a jobber and a roofer, but specializes in office work. He is the man on the job and gives his personal attention to all his work. See him for your next job. His office and workshop are at 127 Market street and his telephone number is 1761.

ACME WELDING CO.

The Acme Welding Co. has been in business in Lowell for the past 12 years and the manager of the concern says if he were to publish the names of his satisfied customers it would require a full page of The Sun. This shows that the company is doing excellent work at reasonable prices. If you have a broken piece of iron, steel or brass, take it to 16-18 Perry street and the Acme Welding Co. will weld it for you.

EDWARD A. WELCH

Edward A. Welch, the plumbing and heating contractor, accepts contracts for any kind of work in his line, whether the jobs are large or small. He knows his business from a to z and hires expert workmen. Prompt service is his motto. His address is 47 Hurd street.

E. F. SLATTERY, JR.

If you have a house for sale or you have made up your mind to buy one, see Edward F. Slattery, Jr. He will know your real estate man and he will look after you. Mr. Slattery is the man of the hour when it comes to selling a house. List your property with him. His office is in the Strand building.

A. U. CONSTANTINEAU

For outside painting or interior decorating see A. U. Constantineau, the painting contractor at 55 Second avenue. Mr. Constantineau does not ask you to give him the job outright; all he wants is an opportunity to present his bids. His telephone number is 3052-R.

A. L. BLIZZARD

Delco-Light really costs you nothing. It pays for itself by doing work—running the washer, pumping water and doing many other odd jobs. This is the opinion of the vast army of Delco-Light users. Write for catalog to A. L. Blizzard, local agent, 1350 Lakeview avenue.

BAY STATE METAL WORKS

Why go through the trouble of hiring a carpenter and buying lumber for the erection of that garage you have been planning for some time, when you can buy a steel portable garage already set upon your land? Before going further with your garage plans see the manager of the Bay State Metal Works and he will tell you all about his garages that are built right here in Lowell.

FAIRGRIEVE BELTING CO.

As long as you are operating a plant in Lowell, why not have your beltings repaired by a Lowell concern? The Fairgrieve Belting Co., which is located at 242 Church street does all kinds of belting work and carries a full stock of mill supplies. Trade at home is a good slogan.

WIND IN WILD FROLIC AT SALISBURY BEACH

(Special to The Sun)
SALISBURY BEACH, July 30.—The intense heat of the past few days was effectively moderated by the severe storm which blew in here Thursday afternoon.

It was the most terrific wind experienced here for a long time. The lightning was terrific. One house was struck in Salisbury, the lightning traveling through on the telephone wires and outside of splintering Officer Dray around several times and throwing him on a couch, did no other damage. The new garage of Mr. Lolley on the Causeway near Shaw square was blown flat. A pole in front of the Kelly hotel was snapped off and for a time light service on the beach was interrupted. In Broadway square, the wind played mad havoc with signs. The big sign of L. S. Willey was blown way down the square almost to the bandstand. Boxes and everything else were seemingly in great haste to reach the ocean front, while the wind played through the telephone wires and posts with all the thrilling sounds as described in the best action of a storm at sea. At pole 4, south end, a cottage was lifted off its foundation. At Black Rocks, the house of William Pierce was lifted from the posts, and turned around without, however, doing any serious damage. Mr. Pierce, who was in the house at the time, stated that he saw the storm coming. The wind seemed to travel like a well defined court. It came down across the Merrimack river, took the piazza off a cottage just across the way, then lifted his house, turned it around and deposited it back again. Two dories were lifted by the wind, carried up in the air, and brought down to the ground, smashing them to bits. The roof of another cottage was blown across several lots, taking the chimney off an adjacent cottage and landed it in the back of Gibney's garage, breaking all the windows. After the roof had been taken from the house, the wind reached down and pulled out chairs, pillows, bed clothing and other articles, distributing them in all directions.

On the ocean front at Broadway, two upper windows at either end of the Sea View dance hall were blown completely out. Flaps on staffs, signs and everything not strongly secured, were quickly taken away by the wind. In the town of Salisbury, trees were blown down and the electric car service was held up for nearly an hour. The regular land concert at the beach as well as the fireworks were given without a hitch and a large crowd was in attendance.

The Baltic sea has an average of one shipwreck a day.

Mrs. Stone on Narrow Ledge
Eight Days—Saw Husband
Dashed to Death

SPRAY FALLS, Alberta, July 30.—Mrs. W. E. Stone, resting in an improvised camp on Mount Ennon, described today how the shrill sound of her voice, caught up by the multitude of peaks and crags and re-echoing, saved her life after her husband, a former resident of Purdue University of Lafayette, Ind., had perished in climbing the mountain and after she had lain eight days on a perilous ledge.

A searching party had figured out the probable course that Dr. and Mrs. Stone would take in the attempt to ascend Mount Ennon. From a point of vantage the searchers had scoured every side with their glasses without a sight of anything. Then, as they decided to go on, one member of the party thought he heard the cry of a woman from afar. Listening intently, the searchers heard it again. A more minute inspection with the glasses revealed for the first time across the canyon the form of a woman. One hour later Mrs. Stone was rescued.

At different periods she had raised her voice with all the vigor she had, expecting that some time it might be heard and she would be rescued. Dr. Stone was within five minutes climbing the top of the highest unscalable mountain, the goal which he and his wife had set, when his own death occurred.

The accident happened on July 16, Mr. and Mrs. Stone expected to make the climb, rest at the top, and then get back to the foot camp that night.

Dr. Stone was climbing above, hopefully, cheerfully and unhesitatingly, when, without a word of warning, a farewell of any kind, not even a sign, he plunged over her head to the abyss below.

He fell 5000 feet, in the opinion of his wife. She saw the last glimpse of her husband as he fell from the cliff and on down the side of the mountain. She began a hasty descent down the cliff. How Mrs. Stone became marooned on a ledge of rock, she does not know. She could proceed neither way. In that position she spent eight days. She had no food, but during the middle of every day when the sun was high, a tiny stream of melted snow came trickling down, so close that she could refresh herself. She never gave up the fight. Every day she cried for help and it was because of this spirit that she was eventually discovered.

To Release All Americans
Continued
pects a quick reply, stating the place and time for the negotiations.

Signed, "KAMANEFF"
The American government representatives in Riga consider the note of Leo Kamanoff announcing acceptance of the American conditions for famine relief as constituting also an answer to the demand made by Secretary of War Hughes for the release of the American prisoners in Russia.

The relief officials are understood to be that their acceptance will not only bring the needed famine relief but also open channels of future relations between Russia and America.

The offer of Herbert Hoover, as head of the American relief administration to see that help was given Russia's sick and starving was made in a telegram addressed to Maxim Gorky. In response to Gorky's recent appeal for aid, the prime condition was laid down that the Americans held prisoner in Russia must be immediately released. It was stipulated also that "proper administrative conditions must be made by soviet Russia, including the full and free liberty of movement for the relief administration representatives."

The reference in the Russian reply to "the million children and invalids" presumably refers to the passage in Mr. Hoover's telegram in which he stated that the relief administration "would be willing to furnish the necessary supplement of food, clothing and medical supplies to a million children in Russia as rapidly as organization could be effected."

Relief Immediately
WASHINGTON, July 30.—American relief for starving Russian children could begin 48 hours after Americans imprisoned or detained in Russia were released and out of Russia, Secretary Hoover said today.

The machinery was ready for immediate operation, he said. There are relief warehouses in Riga and Danzig and it would only be a question of transportation for the supplies to start rolling into the Russian famine areas. The relief organization in Europe has been at work continuously so that a sufficient personnel could be mobilized at Riga to handle the work on short notice, he said.

Food distribution could continue by replenishing the European warehouses from this country as stocks were depleted, using the same machinery for sending food overseas as in the past.

At the state department, it was not expected that release of American prisoners would lead to any early negotiations for recognition of the soviet government by the United States.

Mrs. Harrison Released
RIGA, July 30.—(By the Associated Press)—Mrs. Marguerite E. Harrison, of Baltimore, a newspaper correspondent, who was among the American citizens held prisoner in Russia, has been released by the soviet authorities and arrived here this morning.

Bequests of Late Hotel Man Include $500 to St. John's Hospital

The will of the late Thomas F. Hoban, owner of the Richardson hotel and widely known as a hotel man, was filed in the probate court in East Cambridge yesterday.

The will contains bequests as follows: To St. John's hospital, $500; to each of three brothers, $500; to Fred J. Tighe, James P. Mulvaney and John J. Dawson, friends and former business associates, $500 each; to Lizzie Tulley, Margaret Carroll and Maudie Kennedy, employees, $500 each; to Luke J. Hoban and Thomas F. Hoban, nephews and associates in business, one-half interest in the Richardson hotel real estate.

The remainder of the estate, both real and personal, goes to Mrs. Harriette M. Hoban, wife of the deceased. Edward W. Trull and Mrs. Hoban are named to serve as executors without bonds.

FALSE RUMOR CAUSES ANOTHER BANK RUN

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—The Northeastern Trust Co., an uptown institution, today weathered a run that began yesterday. A false rumor of the trust company's condition started a line of timid depositors yesterday and caused many to withdraw funds today. When the bank opened this morning $1,000,000 in cash was on hand to pay all demands. During the run a counter movement was started and many came to the bank to show their confidence by increasing their deposits. The trust company's deposits amounted to more than $5,000,000 when the last statement was issued. The bank remained open beyond the regular closing time today to meet demands upon it.

All the Philadelphia newspapers today carried an advertisement inserted by the trust company offering a reward of $10,000 for information leading to the arrest of the person who circulated the false rumor about the bank.

DEATH RATE INCREASED BY HEAT WAVE

The heat wave of the present week brought with it a material increase in the death rate. There were 34 deaths as compared with 30 last week and 17 the week before. A year ago this week, there were only 27 deaths. Infant mortality was also high this week, but not as high as the health department had anticipated. There were 13 deaths of children under five and 11 of these were of children less than a year old.

One death was caused by an infectious disease, one by bronchitis and one by tuberculosis. Five cases of diphtheria were reported and seven of tuberculosis.

NO WASTE AT LOCAL POSTOFFICE

Postmaster John F. Meehan in discussing the recent order of the postmaster general of the United States that postoffices be closed over the place on a more economical basis, said this morning that there is no waste or inefficiency in the local postoffice. He said that he makes it a point to keep the expenses of his office down to the lowest figure possible and is confident that a survey of the department will reveal no unnecessary outlay.

He has always maintained, said the postmaster, "that efficiency and economy should go hand in hand and that economy which creates inefficiency is not economy at all. With this principle in view, I have conducted the postoffice as cheaply as was consistent with common sense. We have never had more clerks or carriers here than was absolutely necessary. This is shown by the fact that last February I asked for seven new carriers and the Washington authorities granted the request without hesitation. This shows that they must have been convinced that the carriers were actually needed here."

Mr. Meehan said, however, that a careful survey of the local postoffice system would be made and should any detail prove to be in any degree inefficient it would be immediately remedied.

river at a newly erected camp of the company on this side of the river. No one was injured. Both this village and North Walpole, which is in New Hampshire, were quiet today. State guard officers explained the presence of troops as merely a precautionary measure.

The trouble started yesterday when two trucks left the North Walpole Co. and crossed the river to this village with tents for a camp. Strike sympathizers followed the trucks, which were guarded by Sheriff Wells, man of Brattleboro and 15 deputies, to the campsite. Sheriff Wellman said the crowd appeared threatening but after he had read the riot act it dispersed and the man was arrested. The sheriff and his deputies remained at the camp during the night.

State's Attorney Harold E. Whitney, in charge of the strike area, telephoned Governor Harriman late last night, and as the result of his conversation, two companies were ordered here, one from Brattleboro and the other from Hingham.

Several minor disturbances have occurred since the employees went on strike against proposed wage reductions.

There are 261 557 male workers on farms in this country.

AVIATOR CONQUERS MONT BLANC

CHAMONIX, France, July 30 (by the Associated Press)—Mont Blanc, the highest summit of the Alps, was conquered today by an aviator. The successful aviator was Durafor, a Swiss flier, who had previously failed in two attempts to land on the summit. Setting out from Lausanne, he rose to a great height and ultimately effected a landing on the mountain peak, 15,780 feet above sea level.

Taking off from the summit, Durafor made a favorable descent, finally landing at Chamonix.

Boston, who met at Spaulding park. The Boston outfit came here with a record of 15 victories out of 20 games this season, and presented in its lineup the cream of Greater Boston talent. Manager Coughlin also had a strong team in the field, with Jimmy Davidson once more on the mound.

Another big game was that scheduled for the Textile school campus between the C.M.A.C. of Lowell and the Haverhill K. of C. team. The Haverhill organization was made up of former college and high school stars, while Manager Marcotte also presented a strong lineup.

Other games on this afternoon's program included the Abbot Worsted Co. Canton town team contest at Abbot park, Graniteville, the game between the Massachusetts mills team, leaders of the Lowell Textile league, and the Chelmsford A.A. leaders of the Stony Brook Valley league, on the Chelmsford high school grounds, and the Lowell Electric Lights' clash with the Merrimack A.C. in North Billerica.

Several Hundred Employees Let Go

HOLYOKE, July 30.—Notice was served this noon upon several hundred employees of the American Writing Paper Co., that owing to continued business unprofitability their services would be dispensed with. Those affected, the exact number of whom was not stated, are said to be chiefly in the cost and inventory departments. A cut in the number of salaried employees was also made several months ago.

PONZI DECLARES ALLEN DELINQUENT HUSBANDS ACTED ARBITRARILY IN POLICE COURT

BOSTON, July 30.—Charles Ponzi, now confined in the Plymouth jail as an outcome of the collapse of his get-rich-quick scheme last fall, today declared in a formal court statement his belief that Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen acted arbitrarily in closing the Hanover Trust Co., and that the bank commissioner later dissipated the assets of the company to justify his action.

Ponzi's statement was included in answer received by the clerk of the supreme court to the petition filed by Mr. Allen asking for leave to sell the assets of the Hanover Trust Co., to the Boston National bank.

PRICE OF MILK TO BE INCREASED HERE

The price of milk will go up one cent a quart next Monday, which means that it will retail at 15 cents a quart instead of 14 cents as heretofore. The increase, it is said, is due to the fact that the producers or members of the New England Milk Producers' association have served a notice upon the milk distributors of this city that beginning August 1 the price of milk will be increased five cents a can. The producers have attempted, so it is said, to increase the price to the dealers 7 1/2 cents a can, but there was strenuous objection to the proposed new scale and finally after some argument the producers agreed to increase their prices only five cents a can.

The price of milk in this city dropped a cent a quart last May 1, but the reduction on the part of the dealers did not affect the pint trade, and it was announced this afternoon that the increase, which will go into effect next Monday will not bear in any way upon the pints, which will remain at the old price, 8 cents.

Two weeks ago the members of the New England Milk Producers' association, who supply milk to the local dealers notified the latter that beginning August 1 and until further notice the price of milk will be increased 7 1/2 cents a can, or one cent a quart. The local dealers immediately appointed a committee of five to confer with the producers and enter a protest against the proposed increase. It is understood that the producers were firm on their stand, but after several meetings with the dealers' committee they finally agreed to add but five cents a can to the price of milk, and last evening a two-months' contract was signed, which means that there will be no reduction nor increase in the price of this liquid food until October 1.

One of the dealers stated this afternoon that the milkmen of this city were bitterly opposed to increasing the price of milk, but he said the producers are masters in this case and what they say comes pretty near going. "We do not believe it is right," he continued, "to increase the price of this necessity at this time, for there is no scarcity of milk on the market and we feel that the producers are already receiving all that they should receive, but all we can do is protest. I may say, however, that even with the increase, Lowell will be buying milk cheaper than any other city in this vicinity, for Lawrence and Haverhill have been retailing milk at 15 cents a quart and I understand that next Monday they will raise it to 16 cents a quart. Even Boston, where they are talking about 16-cent milk, is going up on its price Monday and the consumers there will have to pay 16 cents a quart instead of 15 1/2 as it is being sold today. So, after all, Lowell is more fortunate than many other cities."

MERRIMACK MILL OUTING
The annual outing of the employees of the repair shop and power plant of the Merrimack Mfg. Co. was held today at the Martin Luther grounds in Tyngsboro. The party numbered over 50 made the trip to the outing grounds in a motor truck supplied by the company. Sports were held and dinner was served. The committee consisted of F. W. Ireland, chairman; A. B. Thurston, Gustave Fortier, Everett Clark, W. Wyman, J. Whalen and J. Dutton.

Lloyd George Sees Agreement on Silesia

LONDON, July 30.—Mr. Lloyd George, the prime minister, speaking at the unveiling of a war memorial here today referred optimistically to the trend of discussions between France and England over the Silesian situation. The two countries he believed, were on the right road to an understanding and the preliminary troubles which were causing the difficulty had been "accommodated." It had been arranged for the allies to meet in a few days to settle this vexed question, added the premier, and he hoped the settlement would be final.

Fast Train Robbed By Bandits

PITTSBURGH, July 30.—Four bandits boarded the Manhattan Limited west bound on the Pennsylvania railroad at Cassandra, 90 miles east of Pittsburgh this morning at 2.45 o'clock and after wounding A. J. Lantz, a mail clerk, rifled the mail car and escaped.

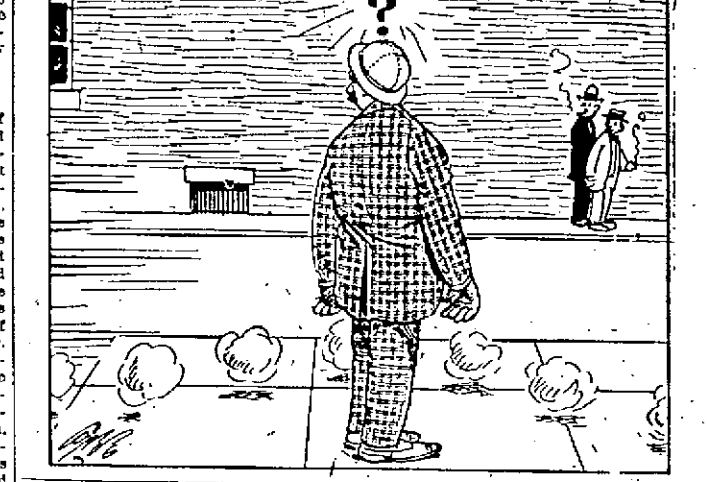

The robbery occurred between Gallitz and Cassandra, two robbers having boarded the train when it stopped to drop the "helper," an engine which assists heavy passenger trains over mountain grades.

They climbed down over the coal in the tender and, while the other two were at work in the mail car, ordered the engineer to start the train. This he did, and almost the same moment the mail car and the contents removed.

A series of shots sounded from the mail car, which was just back of the engine. When the pair on the engine had done their work, the train pulled into the little station at Cassandra and the bandits dropped to the ground.

Federal and county authorities were at once notified and soon after daylight they found a mailing envelope, one stolen from the car. It had been slit open and the contents removed.
